PREFATORY NOTE

THE Editorial Committee regret the delay in issuing this Third Volume of the Fasti. The Volume has been in type for a year, but publishing difficulties having arisen in consequence of the enormous increase in printing expenses, the work could not be further proceeded with at the time.

Volume Three, including within its scope the Presbytery of Glasgow, has entailed an unusual amount of often difficult and arduous research. Thanks must be accorded to many persons, both clerical and lay, who have helped in the preparation of this Volume. The Committee are specially indebted for much assistance to the Clerks of the various Presbyteries, and to the Rev. Andrew Burns, Fenwick; the Rev. W. S. Brownlee, Clydebank; the Rev. John Muirhead, Avendale; the Rev. Archibald Maclaren, Glasgow, and Mr Thomas Reid, M.A., Lanark. They have also to thank Mr D. A. Boyd, Saltcoats, and Mr James R. Anderson, Ayr, for placing valuable notes at their disposal. Pains have been taken to verify the information given, but the book does not claim to be immaculate. It has been found that information taken from pedigrees, and even from tombstones, is frequently contradictory and misleading. Causes of trouble nearly always occur in proper names and dates. In almost every case, however, the material now furnished has been transcribed from the Records of the Church, the Separate Registers of each Presbytery, the Public Records in H.M. Register House and elsewhere, and all the printed literature available on Parish and Family Histories, Biographies, Newspaper Sketches, etc.

The Volume has been brought down to the eve of publication.

10th June 1920.

SYNOD OF GLASGOW AND AYR

The Synod Register begins 30th August 1687.

PRESBYTERY OF AYR

[In 1581 the General Assembly had in view the erection of a Presbytery at Ayr. How soon thereafter this Court was actually constituted does not appear. The Presbytery Register begins at 20th April 1642. There is a gap in the Records from 22nd Jan. 1651 to 3rd Aug. 1687.]

ALLOWAY (Q.S.).

[The parish of Alloway is ancient, and was a prebend of the Chapel Royal of Stirling. Its church was dedicated to St Mungo. In 1690 the parishes of Ayr and Alloway were united. The ancient church of this parish, "Alloway's auld haunted kirk," the romantic scene of Tam o' Shanter's ghostly vision, still stands roofless in its churchyard, a finely placed, impressive ruin. Near its west end is St Mungo's Well, which Burns has not overlooked in the poem. In the churchyard is buried William Burns, the poet's father. In 1858 a mission chapel was built close to the churchyard gate. By decree of the Court of Teinds, 4th July 1860, Alloway was disjoined from Ayr, and erected anew as a separate parish. In addition to the territory within its ancient boundaries, Alloway thereafter included certain lands on the right bank of the Water of Doon taken from the parish of Maybole. In 1891 the modern parish church of Alloway was considerably enlarged.]

[The church of Auchinleck belonged of old to the Abbey of Paisley. In 1754 Alexander Boswell, Lord Auchinleck, a senator of the College of Justice, added an aisle to the church. He was a judge of some note, but is now perhaps best known as the father of James Boswell, Dr Samuel Johnson's biographer. The parish had a Well named Our Lady's, and near Auchinleck Castle stood a Chapel of St Vincent. In 1844 Auchinleck Church was rebuilt on a new site adjoining the old one. There is a mission chapel at Darnconner.]

AYR.

[Until the Reformation the Rectory of Ayr was a prebend of Glasgow. Its church, a spacious structure with choir and transepts, was dedicated to St John the Baptist. The Parliament held at Ayr by Robert I., to settle the succession of the Crown, appears to have sat in St John's Church. About 1652 this fine building was pulled down by Oliver Cromwell to furnish material for a fort which he was erecting close by. The church tower only was spared ; it has recently been the subject of careful restoration. The foundation outlines of St John's can still be well made out. In its stead there was built about 1654 a smaller and much plainer edifice, which has come to be called the Old Church of Ayr. It stands upon ground formerly occupied by the Grey Friars. When the nineteenth century began, the population of the old parish of Alloway had become greatly reduced, while the town of Ayr was steadily growing. In 1810 church services at Alloway were given up, and there was built at Ayr a second place of worship for the united parishes. This building, termed the New Church, stands near the ruins of St John's. Besides the high altar, there were in St John's Church a good many minor altars. Among these were dedications to the Holy Trinity, the Holy Blood, the Holy Rood, St Mary, St Michael, St Peter, St Ninian, St Nicholas, St Christopher, and St Eloi. The chief yearly fairs at Ayr were St John's on St John the Baptist's day, 24th June, and St Michael's at Michaelmas, 29th September. St John's Fair is still held, but now the fair day is the last Tuesday of June, old style. At Doonslie in the parish of Ayr there was a hospital of St Leonard. The parishes of Ayr and Alloway were united in 1690. In 1860 this union was dissolved by the re-erection of the parish of Alloway. In the town of Ayr there was a priory of the Black Friars, dedicated to St Katherine ; and beside it was St Katherine's Well. This priory, founded in 1230, was the earliest house of the Dominicans in Scotland. In it was kept an image of the Virgin Mary greatly famed for miraculous power, and much resorted to by pilgrims. In the Black Friars' Church there was an altar of St Duthac. John Willock, a notable supporter of the Reformation, who became a colleague of John Knox in Edinburgh, was bred a Black Friar of Ayr. The Grey Friars also had a priory in the town. It was founded in 1472 on the site now occupied by the Old Church and its churchyard. On the sloping ground between that church and the water of Ayr the Friars' Well is still to be seen.]

CHRISTOPHER GOODMAN, B.D. ; 1559 became min. here Nov. 1559 ; trans.
to St Andrews in 1560.

JAMES DALRYMPLE, is mentioned at 1560 the first General Assembly, 20th

He entered at Beltane 1568 ; pres. to the vicarage by James VI. 8th Aug. 1571, to the parsonage and vicarage of Alloway 13th Aug. 1573, and to the parsonage of Ayr 28th Nov. 1579. He was a member of the Convention at Leith in 1571, and of the Assembly, Aug. 1572 and 1578. He died in 1580, leaving a widow and children.—[Booke of the Kirk ; Calderwood's Hist. ii. 45 ; *Reg. ROBERT HERBERTSON, called parson

JOHN PORTERFIELD, adm. min. of 1580 Dunbarton in 1564, but banished therefrom before Dec. 1568 ; became
min. of Kilmarnock and vicar of Ardrossan, to which he was pres. by James VI. 29th April 1568 ; trans. here in 1580 ; pres. to the parsonage by James VI. 25th April 1581, and to the parsonage "callit Air secundo" 22nd Sept. 1582. He was a member of at least eleven Assemblies preceding Whitsunday 1597 ; was one of those nominated by the Privy Council 6th March 1589, for preservation of true religion within the baillierie of Kyle, and was dead before 10th April 1604. He is said to have been

JOHN WELSH [WELCH], born about 1600 1570, son of John W. of Colliston, parish of Dunscore, Dumfriesshire, and Marion Grier. After finishing a somewhat desultory education he joined a band of Border thieves, till like the prodigal "he began to be in want," and being ashamed of himself he returned, and through an intercessor, sought reconciliation with his offended parent. He went to the Univ. of Edinburgh, graduated M.A. in 1588, and was the first min. who had studied there. He was nominated, 6th March 1589, by the Privy Council one of a committee for maintaining the true religion in the Forest and Tweeddale; was adm. min. of Selkirk in 1589; trans. to Kirkcudbright in 1594; app. 29th March 1596 one of the visitors for Nithsdale, Annandale, Lauderdale, Eskdale, and Ewesdale. On 18th Dec. of that year, while supplying the High Kirk, Edinburgh, during the flight of its own ministers, he so offended the king by his illustrations, that he also was obliged to take flight, till application was made by the Assembly on 5th March following for permitting his return to his charge. This in 1599 included Galtaway, Dunrod, and Kilchrist; trans. to Ayr as assistant Aug. 1600. In consequence of the crowds who were attracted by his preaching, the Town Council resolved, 26th May 1603, to erect a new church, which, however, was not carried out till 1652. On John Porterfield's death in 1604, the people unanimously elected W. his successor, and on 10th April they requested the Town Council to ratify their choice and assign him a stipend. Though he did not arrive at Aberdeen till two days after an Assembly had been held there, 2nd July 1605, in opposition to the royal will, he zealously approved its proceedings, and has been considered one of its chief supporters. He was summoned before the Privy Council 25th July, and committed prisoner to the castle of Blackness on the 27th. Declining the authority of the Privy Council 24th Oct., in a cause which he considered spiritual, he, with four others, was tried before the Justiciary at Linlithgow 10th Jan. following, found guilty, and banished from His Majesty's dominions for life, 23rd Oct. 1606. He went to France and studied the language of the country so successfully that in fourteen weeks he was able to preach in it with fluency. After preaching at Bordeaux, he was inducted parson at Jonsac in the end of 1608, at Nerac in 1614, and St Jean d'Angely about 1617. For several years after he was banished, the Town Council of Ayr regularly remitted his stipend to him. St Jean d'Angely was besieged in 1620 by Louis XIII. while he was there. By the law of the kingdom no Protestant worship was allowed at the place where the king resided; nevertheless, W. continued to hold his services, and when called before the king and demanded how he durst do so, he replied, "If your Majesty knew what I preach, you would command others, and come yourself to hear it; I preach salvation by Jesus Christ; and sure I am your conscience tells you, your own works will never merit salvation for you; I preach there is none on earth above you, which none of those that adhere to the Pope will say." This firm and energetic reply so pleased the sovereign, that he exclaimed, "Very well, father, you shall be my minister," at the same time promising his protection, so that when the town was taken in the following year, guards of safety were planted at his house, and he and his family conveyed to Rochelle at the king's expense. In consequence of declining health, he was induced to return to Britain in 1622, intending thereafter to settle in the newly formed colony of Nova Scotia. At London his wife petitioned the king in person on his behalf, with urgent solicitude, when James, who had suffered under the faithful rebuke of W. for his unkingly habit of swearing, replied that if she would persuade her husband to submit to the bishops, he would have his permission. With a fortitude and heroism worthy of her husband and her father, Mrs W., lifting up her apron, and holding it towards her sovereign, mildly yet firmly said, "Please your Majesty I'd rather kep (receive) his head there (in her lap)." W. died in London 2nd April 1622, and was buried two days later in St Botolph, Bishopsgate. He marr. previous to 8th April 1596, Elizabeth (died at Ayr, 8th Jan. 1625), youngest daugh. of John Knox the Reformer, and

GEORGE DUNBAR, probably of the family of Dunbar of Cumnock, was 1607 min. of Cumnock in 1599; trans. about 1607; removed by the Privy Council 12th Oct. 1611, and commanded to be warded in Dunbarton, for praying for the banished brethren, his predecessor, and others; became min. of Second Charge in 1613, and returned here in 1619.

WILLIAM BIRNIE of that ilk, born 1612 Edinburgh 1563, only son of William B. of that ilk and Margaret Fraser; educated at St Andrews; M.A. (1588); became a merchant, but sustaining considerable losses, he returned to his studies and studied divinity at Leyden Univ. for three years; was on the exercise at Edinburgh 25th Jan. 1596; pres. to the vicarage of Lanark 28th Dec. 1597; app. 4th Aug. 1603 master and economus of the hospital and almshouse of St Leonard; and on 26th Sept. 1612 Dean of the Chapel Royal; adm. here that year and pres. to parsonages and vicarages of Ayr and Alloway by James VI. 16th June 1614. He was a member of the Court of High Commission 21st Dec. 1615, and one of the commissioners for the suppression of popery agreed to by the Assembly 1616; died 19th Jan. 1619. It was said of him, "He was of good personage, and so agile, that he could make the salmon's leap, by stretching himself on the grass, leaping to his feet, and again throwing them over his head." He was also "pleasant, pious, and charitable even above his estate."

"He waited on his charge with care and pains, At Air, on little hopes and smaller gains."

He marr. Elizabeth, daugh. of John Lindsay, min. of Carstairs (she survived him, and marr. (2) James Harper, surgeon, and (3) John Harper, min. of West Kilbride), and had issue—John, merchant, born 1600, served heir to his father 31st Jan. 1621; James, merchant, afterwards secretary to the King of Poland; Robert, min. of Lanark; Elizabeth (marr. GEORGE DUNBAR, trans. from Second 1619 Charge in 1619; deprived by the Court of High Commission 10th Jan. 1622, for not conforming to the articles of Perth Assembly, endeavouring to prevent their being enacted by the Parliament, and declining the authority of the court being at the same time ordained to be warded at Dumfries. Instead of giving obedience, he continued to preach in the town, though denounced a rebel and put to the horn. Thus the magistrates were brought to trouble, and he was ordered by royal warrant, 30th July 1624, to be sent to Ireland. Being summoned before the Privy Council 22nd Sept. thereafter, he declared "that he wald acquiesce to his majesties will and pleasure." He was then described as "ane decrepite, poore, aged man," yet he went to Ireland, was min. at Larne, for twelve years (1624-1636), and then returned to the charge of Mid-Calder in his native country.—[Orig. Lett., ii.; Livingston's Charac.; Calderwood's Hist., vii., 534; Reid's Ireland, i., 113; Blair's Autob., 73.]

Being appointed to preach before the Synod at Glasgow 30th Aug. 1637, he made an able defence of the service book, then proposed to be introduced, which caused "a great dinne." Retiring from the church, in presence of the archbishop and magistrates, about thirty or forty women fell upon him, "rayling, cursing, and scolding." Having visited the bishop, and taken his leave after supper, he was "no sooner on the causey, at nine o'clock, in a mirk night, than some hundreds of enraged women, of all qualities, were about him with neaves, staves, and peats: they beat him sore, his cloake, ruffe and hat were rent: upon his cryes, however, and candles set out from many windows, he escaped all bloody wounds; yet was in great danger, even of killing." When he went with the bailies and sundry ministers to mount his horse next day, "many women were waiting to affront him. At his onlouping, his horse fell above him, in a very foul myre, in presence of all the company; which occasioned more speech." He was dep. by the Assembly 14th Dec. 1638 for erroneous doctrine. He retired to England, where he obtained, 16th Nov. 1639 the vicarage of Selling, Kent, which he resigned on being inducted to the rectory of Throwley in the same county 15th July 1649; he held also the rectory of Leave-land, and was allowed £200 sterling by the Parliament of Scotland 2nd July 1661. He died before 10th Nov. 1663, and is said to have been "a person of great gifts, and resolutely opposed to all things which he considered Puritanical." He marr. 24th Sept. 1617, Margaret Lindsay of the parish of South Leith, and had issue—William, dean of Edinburgh; Barbara, who had a pension of £20 sterling, 17th May 1679. —[Reg. Sec. Sig.; *S. In 1651 he joined the Protesting party in the Church, and was app. in 1654 by the English Council on the committee for authorising admissions to the ministry in the province of Glasgow and Ayr. In 1662 he was called before the Lord Chancellor for not signing, with six other brethren, the explanation of the Oath of Allegiance laid before Parliament on 28th May, but escaped censure. Though not conforming to Episcopacy, he continued to discharge his duty, being merely confined to the parish; and when an accommodation was proposed to certain Presbyterian ministers by Leighton in 1670, he took an active share in their proceedings. He and his colleague had a presentation to the prebends of Ayr and Alloway, 11th Dec. 1677. On 11th Dec. 1682 he had sentence of deposition passed on him, because he would not conform. CUMNOCK, OR OLD CUMNOCK.

[The rectory of Cumnock was a prebend of Glasgow. Its church was dedicated to St Conal. There was a chapel in the parish at Borland. On St Matthew's Day, the 21st of September, a yearly fair was held at Cumnock. The parish church was rebuilt in 1754, and again in 1867. Alexander Peden, the Covenanter, having died in the neighbourhood, was buried at Auchinleck; but a party of dragoons took up his body, and carried it to Cumnock, to be there hung in chains. Being unable to effect this, they buried the corpse at the foot of the local gallows. This site is near the church, and the people of Cumnock have chosen it for their burial-place. Here in the churchyard lie David Dun and Simon Paterson—two Covenanters shot at Cumnock in 1685. Four other martyrs of the Covenant are buried in this parish at the places where they fell.]

[The church of Dalmakerran belonged to the Abbey of Crossregal. It was dedicated to St Michael, but an older dedication was to St Kieran. He died in 1729. The main part of this parish is inland, its nearest point being almost two miles from the sea; yet the island of Ailsa is included within the bounds of Dailly. There were four chapels in the parish, St Mary's in the Lady Glen, the chapel of Machrikil (Machar a Cille=the level place of the church), another at Altichapel (Alt an t-seipeail=the stream of the chapel), and the fourth on the isle of Ailsa. KIRKOSWALD.

[The parish church was dedicated to St Oswald. It belonged to the Abbey of Crossregal within the parish. This Cluniac Monastery, dedicated to St Mary, was founded in 1244 by Duncan, Earl of Carrick. Its extensive buildings are still stately in their ruin. In early documents this place is often called Kirkoswald of Turnberry, in contrast to the village and Chapel of Kirkoswald in the parish of Ballantrae. The ancient church of this parish stands roofless in the churchyard. Its successor is in the village of Kirkoswald. In the churchyard are buried Douglas Graham and John Davidson, the Originals of Robert Burns's "Tam o' Shanter" and "Souter Johnie."]

MAUCHLINE.

[The church of Mauchline belonged to the Abbey of Melrose. It was dedicated to St Michael, and near it was St Michael's Well. An autumn fair was held at Mauchline on St Francis' Day. Near the parish church there was founded, in or about 1165, St Mary's Cistercian Priory of Mauchline a cell of Melrose Abbey. Ruined portions of it remain. In 1544 George Wishart was invited to preach at Mauchline. When he came he found the church closed against him. The adherents of reform, being in strong force, would have carried the church by storm. But Wishart forbade all violence. He led the crowd to Mauchline Muir, where he preached to them in peace. In 1647 the General Assembly passed an act for erecting a second charge here. The measure, however, was so carried out that, instead of Mauchline becoming a collegiate parish, there was severed from it the new parish of Dalgain, now called Sorn. Mauchline Church was rebuilt in 1829. It is in the old churchyard that Robert Burns has laid the scene of his "Holy Fair." Two of the poet's children lie buried there. On the Green at the Townhead of Mauchline, a monument, set up in 1830, marks the place where, in 1685, five Covenanters were hanged, and buried at the gallows foot.]

NEW KIRK.

JOHN BLAIR, educated at Univ. of Glasgow; was adm. to a charge 1662 (unidentified) in 1649; mentioned as min. here in 1662; deprived by Act of Parliament 11th June, and Decreet of Privy Council 1st Oct. 1662. He was accused, with others, of turbulent and seditious conduct, 14th July 1663; on his confession, 18th Aug., he was prohibited from exercising any part of the ministry in time coming, and was required to remove beyond the River Ness before 1st Oct. "under the highest peril." He appears to have preached at a conventicle in Inverkeithing in end of 1679 or beginning of 1680.—[Wodrow's Hist., i., 372.]

MAYBOLE AND KIRKBRIDE.

[These two parishes were united soon after 1571.

Maybole.—The vicarage of Minibole, now called Maybole, belonged to the Cistercian Nunnery of North Berwick. Its church was dedicated to St Cuthbert, and contained a chapel of St Ninian founded in 1431. There was a chapel in the parish on the lands of Auchendrane. Maybole had three Holy Wells—Our Lady's, St Anthony's, and St Helen's. Within the bounds were two early dedications, probably chapels, St Muireach's, at the place called St Murrays, and St Kenneth's, at Kilchenzie. On Lammas day, the first of Aug., a fair was held at Maybole. In the town are the ruins of St Mary's Collegiate Church of Maybole, founded in 1371, by Sir John Kennedy of Dunure, the earliest foundation of the kind in Scotland. The last event of note in the history of St Mary's took place in May 1563, when Gilbert, fourth Earl of Cassillis, headed an attempt to overturn the Reformation. Some two hundred of the Kennedy Clan, with their allies, rose in arms, and took possession of that church, where, in open defiance of the law, they had Mass sung with full Roman ceremonial. It was the last of several such efforts. The leaders of this demonstration were promptly brought to trial; and the reaction went no further. Two years before this, Quentin Kennedy, Abbot of Crossregal, challenged John Knox to an open debate on some of the theological questions of the time. On 28th Sept. 1561, their meeting took place in one of the larger ancient houses still left standing at Maybole. The discussion lasted for three days, and aroused much interest at the time. In the corner of a field near the town stands a stone erected to the memory of six Maybole men, taken at Bothwell Bridge—Mungo Eccles, Thomas Horne, Robert MacGarron, John MacHarrie, John MacWhirter, and William Rodger. After much hard usage, they were shipped as convicts to Virginia in a vessel which was wrecked on the Moul Head of Deerness in Orkney, where they were drowned, 10th Dec. 1679. Maybole Church was rebuilt in 1808.

Kirkbride.—The church of Kirkbride belonged to the Nunnery of North Berwick. It was dedicated to St Bride. Its ruins are still to be seen; and the old churchyard around them is used for burial. The piece of ground adjoining keeps its ancient name of the Priest's Land.]

the Covenanters, and Moderator of General Assembly in 1644. He was ordered in Aug. 1642 to repone Gilbert Power, min.
of Stoneykirk, whom the Assembly found to have been unjustly dep. When B. went to that parish he was opposed by a number of women and others armed with clubs and stones, who prevented his preaching in the kirk. This so affected him that it cast him into a long and dangerous fever. A committee was app. by the following Assembly for the trial of the rioters. He joined the Resolutioners or Moderate Party in the Church; died about 1655. He is said to

MONKTON AND PRESTWICK.

[These two parishes were united soon after 1567.

Monkton, of old Monks' Prestwick.—The rectory of Monks' Prestwick belonged to the Abbey of Paisley. Its ancient church, now ruined, dedicated to St Cuthbert, was used for worship till 1837. The chapel of Crosbie, with the lands in the parish of Dundonald lying near it, was included in Monkton from 1651 to 1688; but in the latter year all that district was given back to Dundonald. Near Adamton, on the lands of Ladykirk in this parish, are the ruins of the chapel of St Mary called Our Lady Kirk of Kyle, a famous place of pilgrimage. Dependent on this chapel was Our Lady's Chapel on the Lady Isle, some three miles off the coast near Troon.

Prestwick.—In old times this parish was commonly called Prestwick Burgh, in contrast to Monks' Prestwick. Its church, which belonged to the Abbey of Paisley, was dedicated to St Nicholas, and on St Nicholas' day a fair was held at Prestwick. Within the bounds stood St Ninian's Leper Hospital of Kilcass, or Kingcais, founded by King Robert I. Its Well only now remains. A new church for the united parishes of Monkton and Prestwick was built at Prestwick in 1835.]

Written sermons (at least when they were read) were not popular in those days. But sometimes he prepared no sermons, if his statement is true, that "twenty-six years he had preached by reading of Commentaries and bringing no Byble to the Kirk at all." The Presb.

ordered him to take the Bible with him, when he "did bring a great Kirk-Bible with ane selch covering thairon, and in the samin had an quair of paper or thairby tyed therin, wherin his preachings were wreatten, and immediately after reading the text, goes to the said paper, and turneth the leafs thereof, sometimes ten or twelf, sometimes moe, or fewer, as occasion serveth, and so insisteth in reading of the same, till the tyme of sermon be past; and that after preaching and prayer is endit, he layeth the Byble upon the saitt he sitts on within the pulpit, and when the psalm beginneth to be sung, he taketh the wreatten paper out of the Byble, and puts it in his berakkines, and leaveth the Bible there till he returne the nixt day, and practises the same order, and in tyme of sermon the most part of the people do nothing, but lay wajours upon the turning of the pages." ST QUIVOX, FORMERLY SANCHAR-IN-KYLE.

[The church of Sanchar-in-Kyle was dedicated to St Kevoc. For the sake of distinction from Sanquhar in Nithsdale, this parish came to be called St Kevoc's, a name now corrupted into St Quivox. From 1221 to 1238 the church of Sanchar belonged to the Gilbertine Priory of St Mary at Dalmulin within the parish. From 1238 till the Reformation it was owned by the Abbey of Paisley. The Religious House of Dalmulin was founded in 1221 by Walter, third High Steward of Scotland. He settled it with Brethren of the Order of St Gilbert of Sempringham, drawn from the Priory of Sixel in Lincolnshire. The Gilbertine Order admitted to the same convent both men and women; but there is no record of any female inmates at Dalmulin. This was the only house owned in Scotland by this purely English Order, and they did not hold it long. In or about the year 1238, when the political relations of the two kingdoms had grown unfriendly, the Friars of Dalmulin went back to England. Their Priory then became a cell of Paisley Abbey.]

"So long he lived in this secure retreat, Neither affecting to be known nor great—Humble and painful taught the great concern,
 Which yet he thought he never enough could learn:
 Skill'd in the tongues of heavenly truth,
 The only language of Jehovah's mouth,
 He led his flock through the delicious fields (Heaven's gentle dews and rain it yields).
 Shunning law-suits by deeds he used to write,
 He sav'd their purse and clear'd their doubtful right;
 And with rare bounty gratify'd the poor
 From the rich treasure of his blessed store,
 Which, by the laws of God and man, descends
 To his long, dear, and valuable friends."

[The old churchyard lies open to the wind on the Castle Hill of Ardrossan. The church there was blown down by a violent gale in 1695. A new church was then built half a mile inland in a less exposed situation. In 1744 this latter site was exchanged for one at the rising town of Saltcoats. The new building there fared little better from the western blasts than the old one at Ardrossan. In 1773 it was so much damaged by a wild storm of wind that it had to be rebuilt next year. A handsome new church was erected in 1907. At Saltcoats, in earlier times, there was a chapel of St Medan. Two fairs in the year were held at Saltcoats, one on St Laurence's Day, 10th Aug., the other on the Nativity of St Mary, 8th Sept.]

FENWICK, SOMETIME NEW KILMARNOCK.

[At the desire of the General Assembly the parish of Fenwick was disjoined from Kilmarnock, and erected by Parliament 9th Oct. 1641. The parish was annexed by the Synod to the Presb. of Glasgow 17th Oct. 1677, but was retransferred to that of Irvine in 1689. Fenwick Church, built in 1643, contains interesting old woodwork and a characteristic ancient pulpit with an hourglass. The parish jouns also remain. John Howie, author of the Scots Worthies, was born at the farmhouse of Lochgoin in 1735.]

WILLIAM GUTHRIE, born 1620, eldest son of James G. of Pitforthie, Forfarshire, by a daugh. of Lyon of Easter-Ogle, in Tanadice parish. He became an apt scholar, and on 5th June 1638 he graduated M.A. at the Univ. of St Andrews, where his studies had been directed by his cousin, James Guthrie the martyr, then a regent in philosophy. He studied divinity under Samuel Rutherford. To free himself from what he considered purely worldly affairs, he made over Pitforthie to one of his brothers. He was licen. by the Presb. of St Andrews in Aug. 1642, and became tutor to the eldest son of John Campbell, first Earl of Loudoun, the Lord High Chancellor of Scotland. Some persons from Fenwick having heard him preach at a Fast-day service in Galston Kirk, they desired him to be called as the first min. of their newly created parish. That was done, and he was ord. 7th Nov. 1644. Soon afterwards the General Assembly appointed him an army chaplain, and he was present at the engagement which took place at Mauchline Moor in June 1648. He joined the Protesters in 1651. On 8th Aug. 1654 he was appointed by the English Council on a committee for supervising admissions to the ministry within the bounds of his own Synod. Refusing to submit to Episcopacy, he was deprived 24th July 1664. He went to Pitforthie, which had again come into his hands through the death of his brother, and following a period of ill-health, he died in the manse of his brother-in-law, Laurence Skinner, min. of Brechin, 10th Oct. 1665, and was buried in the Cathedral there. He was a man of ready wit, who moved freely amongst his people, lived simply, and spent a great part of his leisure in such sports as fishing and fowling. When he preached his church was crowded, and his pastoral work was performed with undiminished fervour and success throughout all his ministry. He refused calls to Renfrew, Linlithgow, Stirling, Glasgow, and Edinburgh. Dr John Owen describes him as "one of the greatest divines that ever wrote." Guthrie's book, The Christian's Great Interest (which has been translated into several foreign tongues), was published to vindicate himself against a volume purporting to contain a series of his sermons on Isaiah lv. This appeared at Aberdeen about 1657 as A Clear, Attractive, Warming Beam of Light. In 1680 another work professing to be his was issued, with the title The Heads of some Sermons preached at Finnick in August 1662, but this also was disclaimed by his widow in a public advertisement. Most of his papers were seized in 1682, when Mrs Guthrie's house was raided by a party of soldiers instigated by the bishops. He marr. Aug. 1645, Agnes, daugh. of David Campbell of Skeldon, parish of Dalrymple, and had issue—Agnes, born 1652 (marr. Matthew Miller of Glenlee); Mary, born 1654 (marr. Patrick Warner, min. of Irvine); Elizabeth; Margaret, John, and William, who all died young. He obtained charge of a Presbyterian congregation at Coleraine, Ireland, about 1669; was indulged here (on a call from the people) by Privy Council 3rd Sept. 1672; died 20th July 1676, aged about 58. IRVINE.

[The church of Irvine belonged to the Abbey of Kilwinning. In early times it was dedicated to St Inan, but there was a later dedication to St Mary. There were two chapels in the parish, St Mary's on the Water of Irvine near the church, and the other at Bourtriehill. The parish church contained at least nine dedications besides that of the high altar. Two of these were in honour of St Ninian. The others bore the names of St Salvator, St Conal, St Thomas the Martyr, St Sebastian, St Christopher, St John the Baptist, and St Stephen. Close to the churchyard stood the priory of the White Friars of Irvine founded in the fourteenth century by one of the Fullartons of that ilk. Irvine church was rebuilt on a new site in 1774. Two fairs in the year were held at Irvine in honour of St Mary, the one on the 15th of Aug., the feast of her Assumption, and the other on the 8th of Sept., the day of her Nativity.]

DAVID DICKSON, M.A.; adm. 31st March 1618; proposed for Edinburgh Oct. 1620; deprived by the Court of High Commission 10th Jan. 1622, and confined to Turriff, for opposing the Articles of Perth and declining the authority of the Court, but was permitted to return in July 1623. In the discharge of his official duty he was unwearied and indefatigable, and was universally esteemed by his parishioners. During the visitation of religious zeal in 1630, known as "the Stewarton Sickness," his prudence was notable, and the interests of practical religion were maintained. For employing in 1637 two of his countrymen, who were under the ban of Episcopal authority in Ireland, he was again called before the High Commission. As its authority, however, was then on the decline, he was no further troubled. In the same year an attempt was made to enforce the Service-Book, which he and his Presb. moderately but firmly opposed. He was a member of Assembly of 1638, and distinguished himself by his activity and determination during its memorable proceedings. An attempt to have him translated to Glasgow was at that time successfully opposed. In 1639 he was appointed chaplain to the newly raised Ayrshire regiment, who were shortly afterwards disbanded. On 12th Aug. that year he was elected Moderator of the Assembly, an honour well deserved, and he discharged its duties with judgment and moderation; trans. to the Professorship of Divinity in the Univ. of Glasgow 30th Jan. 1640; afterwards min. of St Giles, Edinburgh.

KILBIRNIE.

[The church of Kilbirnie was dedicated to St Breandan, and St Breandan's Well was near. The church belonged to the Abbey of Kilwinning. On St Breandan's Day, the 28th of May, a fair was held at Kilbirnie.

Of several dates carved upon the church, the earliest is 1597. That, however, evidently refers to an addition. The main structure is in the style of a somewhat earlier time. There is, in one of the transepts, a very elaborate gallery pew, having on it much fine heraldic and symbolic carving. This was erected in 1694 by John, first Viscount Garnock. In the churchyard, a great feature is the mausoleum of the Crawfurds of Jordanhill, built in 1594. In it are recumbent statues of Thomas Crawford of Jordanhill, who captured Dunbarton Castle in 1571, and his wife.]

KILMARNOCK.

[The church of this parish was dedicated to St Marnoch, who was commemorated also in the name of the stream called the Water of Marnoch, but now generally termed Kilmarnock Water. The church was rebuilt in 1802, and enlarged in 1831. It is now commonly known as the Laigh Kirk. Its tower is a survival from the older building, and is said to have been built in the fifteenth century. A spring near by was styled Our Lady's Well. Sir William Mure of Rowallan, M.P., the poet and historical writer, was an elder of this parish. He undertook, among other poetical works, a metrical version of the Psalms, but did not live to complete it. The churchyard of Kilmarnock has several interesting memorials of Covenanting times. One monument marks the place where are buried the heads of John Ross and John Shields, executed at Edinburgh on 27th Dec. 1666. Their bodies were interred with those of criminals in Edinburgh, but the heads were long exposed for public warning at Kilmarnock, where the men were well known. Another stone tells how five men of the neighbourhood, Thomas Finlay, John Cuthbertson, William Brown, Robert Anderson, and James Anderson, taken at Bothwell Bridge in 1679, were drowned at sea, while being carried as convict prisoners to the American plantations. A third inscription records that John Finlay was hanged at Edinburgh as a Covenanter on 15th Dec. 1682, while on another stone is the name of John Nisbet of Hardhill, a famous member of a notable Covenanting family. He was executed at Kilmarnock on 14th April 1683.]

Sept. 1688; called to Dunbarton,

12th Nov. 1712, because of the "difficulties he met with from the people in carrying on his work in the parish." He retired to Hill of Kilmaurs, a small property he possessed in the parish, and preached there even after his successor was appointed, a proceeding which led to the erection of the first dissenting meetinghouse in Ayrshire. He died 13th Feb.
1731, aged 66. He had a knowledge of medicine, which he practised without payment. He had great muscular strength, and on one occasion at Kilmarnock market, it is said, when told the price of two horseshoes, he replied, "so much for these! I could twist them with my fingers."
"Twist them then," replied the smith,
"and you shall have the price of your own making." Taking up one he did so, and the smith considering his customer as "no cannie," gave him the shoes on his own terms, glad to get rid of him.

There was long held here a tryst called St Finan's Fair; and a spring near the manse is still known as St Winan's Well. Part of the Abbey Church was in use as the Parish Church until 1775, when a separate church was built for parochial worship. In 1814 the remaining ruins of the monastery were greatly damaged by the fall of its fine, lofty tower. This tower was then rebuilt on a smaller scale to Abbey of Paisley. Its church was dedicated to St Conal, and in the Old Glebe at Pollok

 Dowry, a walled enclosure having a ruined building within it. In the old church at Pollok there was an altar of St Ninian.
 The parish church was removed from century. In 1781 Eastwood Church was ROBERT WODROW, youngest son of 1703 James W., Professor of Divinity, Univ. of Glasgow, was born in the Trongate there, April (or Sept.) 1679. At the very hour of his birth, soldiers under warrant of the Privy Council, were searching the house to seize his father, but the latter, having exchanged clothes with the physician's man-servant, succeeded in escaping. Wodrow entered the Univ. of Glasgow in 1691, and graduated M.A. 18th Jan. 1697. He served as chaplain in the house of his kinsman, Sir John Maxwell of Pollok, and for several years he was librarian to the Univ. of Glasgow. On 6th Jan. 1703, he was licen. by the Presb. of Paisley, and ord. to this charge 28th Oct. of that year. In 1707 he was one of a Committee of Presb. appointed to consult and act with the Commission in Edinburgh as to the best means of averting the evils with which the Union of the Kingdoms seemed to threaten the church and people of Scotland. On the accession of George I. in 1714, he was principal correspondent and adviser of the five ministers sent by the Assembly to London to plead the rights of the Church, and particularly to petition for the abolition of patronage. He assisted Principal Hadow in drawing up the Act of Assembly (1731) for the filling up of vacant parishes, the passing of which in the following year gave rise to the Associate Presbytery. He declined calls to Glasgow in 1712, to Stirling in 1717, and again in 1726. He died 21st March 1734. An enthusiastic collector of information on the history and personal ministry of the Church, he left behind him a vast accumulation of interesting and illuminative MSS. many of which were printed by the Wodrow Society (1841-50), the Maitland and other Clubs. The Wodrow MSS. are preserved in the Advocates' Library, and the Library of the Univ. of Glasgow. He marr. INCHINNAN, OR KILINNAN.

[The vicarage of Inchinnan belonged to the Knights Templars, and, after the dissolution of the Order of the Temple, to the Knights Hospitallers of St John. The parish church was dedicated to St Conal, but there was probably an earlier dedication to St Inan. Of St Conal's Cross, an ancient structure which stood near the church, the base only now remains. A piece of land called the Lady Acre, now held by the minister, formed of old the endowment of an Altar of St Mary in the church. Inchinnan church was rebuilt in 1828, but the structure then erected has given place to a much finer parish church built by Archibald, Lord Blythswood, in 1904.]

What he said was solid and scriptural, and was spoken with great affection, fervency, and vehemency. In the heat of harvest his kirk would be full even to the very door when he preached on a Friday; the people left the field for an hour and a half, heard with greediness, and returned, and found their day's work as complete as on any other day of the week." But following his "indulgence" it is stated that he "could not then get people to attend a week-day sermon in time of harvest." [The church of Lochwinnoch belonged to the Abbey of Paisley. It was dedicated to St Gwinoch. In 1504 John, first Lord Sempill, built in this parish St Mary's Collegiate Church of Lochwinnoch, now a picturesque ruin. The founder fell at Flodden in 1513. His body was then brought home, and buried in St Mary's beside the remains of his first wife, Margaret, daughter of Sir Robert Colvill of Ochiltree. An elaborate and somewhat florid mural monument over their grave commemorates Lord and Lady Sempill. On the wall of another part of the ruined church is a simpler and finer memorial in honour of their son Gabriel Sempill of Cathcart, who died in 1587. Lochwinnoch church was rebuilt in 1806.]

PAISLEY.

[St Mirin's or The Abbey Parish.—Where the Abbey Church of Paisley now stands, there was from a very early time a church dedicated to St Mirin. It would appear also that it was built over the saint's tomb. Around that church this parish arose. From the church, too, the place got its name of Baisleac or Paisley, meaning a large or notable church. This word baisleac, a Gaelic term of Greek origin, is not of frequent occurrence, and may never have been very commonly applied. But there are other places so named in Scotland, and several in Ireland. When the Monastery of Paisley was founded as a Cluniac Priory in 1169, the parish church of St Mirin was granted to it. The pious founder, Walter, first High Steward of Scotland, transferred at that time to Paisley a monastic community which he had himself set up at Renfrew in 1163. The monks thus settled, first at Renfrew and then at Paisley, were brought from an English Priory at Much Wenlock in Shropshire, the High Steward's native district. St Mirin, to whom the place had long been dedicated, was retained as patron of the new monastery, but in its dedication there were joined with him St Mary, St James, the patron of Renfrew, and St Milburga of Wenlock. Many benefactions were bestowed upon the High Steward's foundation by his descendants, notably by his son and grandson, Alan and Walter, the second and third High Stewards. In 1219 Pope Honorius III. raised Paisley to the rank of an abbey. In 1307 it was burned by an English army under Aylmer de Valence. A restoration was speedily begun, and in 1334 Pope Benedict XII. conferred on its Superior the dignity of a Mitred Abbot. By 1459 the abbey buildings were complete again. Embellishments and enlargements now went steadily on, for the monastery was very rich. In 1484 Abbot George Shaw enclosed with lordly walls and gateways the extensive precincts of the abbey. The tower which rose from the crossing of the church is said to have been of great height.

But it is very doubtful whether that tower was ever completed until recent times. The last addition of great importance was the building of a new choir, without aisles, about 125 feet long. When the work had made some progress, the great central tower fell. Its fall wrecked the north transept, and did much damage to other parts of the church, and to the conventual buildings. But little had been done towards repairing this disaster when the abbey was suppressed in 1560. The Abbey Church, such as it was, soon became the parish church of Paisley. But only the nave, crossing, and south transept were habitable. The north transept was a roofless ruin; most of the tower had fallen, and the walls of the new choir were barely half built. There does not seem to have been any renovation undertaken till 1862, when the nave was restored. Near the end of the nineteenth century there was carried out a further restoration of the transepts, St Mirin's Chapel, and the lower part of the tower. In 1913 began a complete restoring and finishing of the whole church, with the tower, cloisters, and some remains of the monastic buildings. The cost of this, estimated at about £40,000, is being borne by members of the well-known Paisley family of Clark. The work is still in progress under the hands of Patrick MacGregor Chalmers, architect, Glasgow. The total length of the church is over 260 feet. Within St Mirin's Church were buried the founder and most, if not all, of the High Stewards and their near kindred. Among these was Walter, the sixth of the line, who was knighted on the battlefield of Bannockburn for notable achievements done that day. Here, too, lies his young wife, Marjorie, daughter of King Robert I., and mother of Robert II. When Robert III. died at Rothesay Castle, he also was buried in this church. Attached to the south transept is St Mirin's Chapel, in which of old were the shrines of St Mirin and St Columba. There were also in the church, altars of St Mary, St Ninian, St Nicholas, St Peter, St Katherine, and St Anne. At the Broomlands, near the town, was a Chapel of St Roque with seven roods of adjoining land belonging to it. Beside the Lady Burn there was a Chapel of St Mary. Another chapel stood at Blackhall, and at Cruickston there was a hospital. In 1577 the Grammar School of Paisley was founded by royal charter, and was endowed with the revenues of a number of the chapels and altars of the abbey. Yearly fairs were held at Paisley in honour of St Mirin, St James, and St Marnoch. For a lengthy account of St Mirin and his apostleship, see Brown's History of Paisley, vol. i., chap. 2.]

FIRST CHARGE.

WILLIAM MACFINGOUN, M.A.; 1572 probably a pre-Reformation priest who conformed and became reader in 1572.

PATRICK ADAMSON [or CON-1572 STANT], formerly min. of Ceres, and an advocate; returned to the ministry and was adm. to this charge Aug.
 1572. In 1574, Kilbarchan, Mearns, and Neilston were also under his care. He resided in Glasgow, not being able to obtain a lodging in Paisley, and was sharply rebuked by the Assembly for not "waiting on his cure." He became chaplain to the Regent, James, Earl of Morton, and was afterwards Archbishop of St Andrews (q.v.).—[Melville's Diary (Bannatyne Club), 42; Dict. Nat. Biog.]

ANDREW POLWART [POLWARTH], 1574 studied at Geneva, and was adm.
 min. here at Martinmas 1574. He was one of a committee appointed by the Assembly for correcting an edition of the English Bible then being printed by Alexander Arbuthnot and Thomas Bassandyne [the first Bible issued in Scotland]. He experienced great difficulty in the performance of his ministerial duties, being hindered in every possible way, and his life threatened if he remained. After two years he was loosed from his charge
 "that he may serve uther quhair it please God to call him, because of the contempt of discipline, thair manifest vices, minacing, and boasting of him in doing his deutie, his labours cannot be profitable to them." He became min. of Cadder in 1578.—[Reg. Assig.; Reg. Min.; Wodrow Miscell., i, 382; Calderwood's Hist., iii, 328, 350; Knox's Works, vi.; Melville's Autob.; Book of the Kirke, iii., 324, 342; Lees's Abbey of Paisley, 240.]

THOMAS SMEATON, adm. in 1577 or 1578; app. Professor of Divinity and Principal of the Univ. of Glasgow [in succession to Andrew Melville] in 1580 (q.v.) and min. of Govan.

PATRICK SHARPE, min. at Paisley, Neilston, and Kilbarchan in 1584.—[Audit of Exchequer, 22nd July 1584.]

ANDREW KNOX, trans. from Lochwinnoch, and adm. here in 1585; 1585 became Bishop of the Isles (q.v.) 12th Feb. 1605. After visiting his See, he wished to continue min. of Paisley, and made overtures for the appointment of a colleague, but neither the Presb. nor the magistrates and inhabitants would entertain his proposal. He did not actually quit this charge until 12th Nov. 1607.—[Metcalfe's Hist. of Paisley, 212; Scottish Review, xx.; Hatfield MSS., vii., 246.]

PATRICK HAMILTON, M.A.; elected 1607 from a leet of three 23rd April; trans. from Lochwinnoch and adm. between 12th Nov. and 25th Dec. 1607. He was not in the charge after 1610, but was adm. to Cambuslang after 3rd July 1628.—[Brown's Hist. of Paisley, 81.]

ARCHIBALD HAMILTON, born 1579, 1610 son of Claud H. of Barnes, Dunbartonshire; Regent in the Univ. of Glasgow, of which he was D.D.; was on the leet with Andrew Boyd, min. of Eaglesham, and Patrick Hamilton, his predecessor, 27th March 1606; adm. before 8th June 1610. In 1612 he built a manse (now demolished) for the mins. of the First Charge of the Abbey Parish, and a stone set over the entrance bore his own initials with those of his wife. He was a member of the Perth Assembly 25th Aug. 1618, and of the Court of High Commission 15th June 1619; was app. Bishop of Killala in Ireland 21st May, and consecrated in St Peter's Church, Drogheda, 29th June 1623. On 20th April 1630 he was made Archbishop of Cashel and Emly. He incurred the displeasure of Archbishop Laud for having "upon his own authority commanded a fast once a week for eight weeks together throughout his province," as well as for being in possession of the temporalities of no fewer than sixteen vicarages. When required to explain matters he pleaded inability to travel to Dublin, owing to an acute attack of sciatica. Laud wrote to the Earl of Strafford: "Do you not think it would lame any man to carry sixteen vicarages? But surely that burden will help him to a sciatica in his conscience sooner than in his hips." Shortly after the rebellion of 1641 he left Ireland and settled in Sweden. He is said to have died at Stockholm in 1659, but another account gives Upsala in 1658. He marr. (1) a lady whose initials, A.L., only are known: (2) a daugh. of James Haig of Bemersyde and Elizabeth, wet-nurse of Elizabeth, Queen of Bohemia (daugh. of James VI.), daugh. of Thomas M'Dowall of Stodrig, and had issue. He is said to be the ancestor of several Hamilton families in Sweden.—[Row's Hist., 269; *Glasg. ALEXANDER HAMILTON, M.A.; 1625 dem. either before the date fixed for his settlement in 1625, or within a few months thereafter.

ROBERT BOYD of Trochrig, Ayrshire, born Glasgow, 1578, eldest 1626 son of James B., Archbishop of Glasgow; educated at Ayr School and Univ. of Edinburgh; M.A. (1594); went to France and taught at Tours; became Professor of Philosophy (Arts) at Montauban, 1599-1604; min. at Verteuil, 1604-6; trans. to Saumur in 1606; was Professor of Divinity there in 1608; app. Principal of Glasgow Univ. Jan. 1615; elected to Greyfriars' Parish, Edinburgh, 18th Oct. 1622, with the Principalship of Edinburgh Univ. in conjunction; dem. in 1623; pres. to this charge (at the earnest desire of the parish) by James, Earl of Abercorn, 1625; adm. 1st Jan. 1626; dem. in Aug. that year, having been assaulted at the instance of his relative, Marion Boyd, Countess Dowager of Abercorn, who had become a Romanist, and her son Charles. In B.'s absence the doors of his house were broken open, his books littered on the floor, and his furniture thrown into the street. This so affected him that on 14th Sept. 1626 he sent a formal resignation of his charge to the Presb. He retired to Trochrig, and died in Edinburgh (where he had gone for medical advice) of a malignant growth in the throat, 5th Jan. 1627. He was a person of singular piety, great learning and admirable eloquence in French, Latin, and Greek. He marr. at Saumur, May 1611, Anna, daugh. of Sir Patrick Maliverne of Viniola, knight (she survived him, marr. (2) 1629, Dr George Sibbald, and died before 14th Dec. 1654), and had issue—Robert; John of Trochrig; Anne; Margaret; Janet. JOHN CRICHTON, cousin of Robert Baillie, Principal of Univ. of Glasgow; M.A. (St Andrews 1619); ord. to Abercorn in 1622; trans. to Campsie 27th April 1623; pres. by James, Earl of Abercorn; coll. 28th Aug., and adm. 6th Sept. 1629. On 26th July 1638, the parishioners brought against him no fewer than thirty-four charges on matters of doctrine and conduct, and "having found witnesses that he was ane professed arminiane and popish champion, him the Assemblie all in one voice deposed," 5th Dec. 1638. He petitioned the Presb. 10th May 1649, stating that as he was now chaplain to James, Marquess of Ormond, a chaplain-major in the army, and installed in the Trinity Kirk of Dublin, he should be reponed. The Presb. referred him to the Assembly, which sent the matter back to the Presb. What followed does not appear. In 1655 he is styled Professor of Physic in Glasgow, and in 1661 he had a grant of vacant stipends.—[Baillie's Lett., i. 123, iii. 434; Balfour's Annals, ii., 308; Lees's Paisley Abbey, 284-95; *G. HENRY CALVERT [or CULWORT], an Englishman by birth; ord. by Andrew, Bishop of Raphoe, as assistant to Edward Brice, min. at Broadisland, Co. Antrim, 4th May 1629; adm. to Oldstone or Muckamore (now Killead) 17th June 1630; dep. by Henry, Bishop of Down, 1636, for refusing to subscribe the Canons. On 27th May 1641 he was pres. to this parish by James, Earl of Abercorn, and adm. 1st July that year. In 1642, "considering the charge an over-great burden to one," he had a colleague appointed. He was seized with gout in 1647, and "having been suddenly overtaken with a palsie" died after 22nd June 1653. "Of a fervent spirit and vehement delivery in preaching, and withal very diligent, he was a blessing to his people." He marr. Barbara Boyd, who died before 9th May 1679.—[Glasg. Tests.; Reid's Ireland, i., 115, 221; Baillie's Lett., iii., 43; Livingston's Charac.; Blair's Autob., 73.]

JOHN DRYSDALE, M.A. (Glasgow, 1650 26th July 1637). He had been probably ord. to a charge in Ireland, and was adm. here as colleague Oct. 1650; outed on the establishment of Episcopacy in 1661. Being charged with turbulent and seditious practices 9th Dec. 1662 he was ordered to be arrested by the Privy Council. He fled and perhaps returned to Ireland.—[Wodrow's Hist., i., 327.]

ALEXANDER DUNLOP, born 1621, 1658 son of Archibald D., son of Auchenskeith; educated at Univ. of Glasgow; M.A. (1638); ord. to Second Charge 12th Sept. 1644; sometime chaplain in the army; in 1651 he joined the Protesters; trans. to this charge, and adm. 28th Dec. 1653. In 1654 he was app. by the English Privy Council on the committee for authorising admissions to the ministry in the province of Glasgow and Ayr; deprived on the establishment of Episcopacy in 1661, and ordered to quit the kingdom 6th Jan. 1662. It was proposed to send him to Holland, but Sir Robert Cunningham, the king's physician, intervened, saying "that they might as well execute him on the scaffold as send him to the sea, for he could not be twenty-four or forty-eight hours upon the sea but it would be his death, for by his extraordinary study and labour in Paisley he had brought his strong body so low that he could not live upon the sea for a very short time." He appears to have retired to Culross. After the hopes of the Covenanters had been disappointed at Rullion Green, he died, it is said, of a broken heart, at Bo'ness, 13th March 1667. He marr. (1) 1646, Jean Mure, who died July 1647; (2) Elizabeth, daugh. of William Mure of Glanderston. The latter having attended a conventicle in a private house, was imprisoned by order of the Privy Council 6th Nov. 1676, until she found caution to remove from Edinburgh and six miles around it.

He had issue—William, Principal of Glasgow Univ. (q.v.), born 1654, died March 1700; James, merchant, Rotterdam; Margaret (marr. James Stirling, min. of Kilbarchan). ST GEORGE'S, OR THE LAIGH KIRK PARISH, PAISLEY.

[A church built here in 1736 was called, from its situation, the Laigh Kirk. On 7th July 1738, the Laigh Kirk Parish was disjoined by the Commissioners for the Plantation of Kirks from the parish of the Abbey of Paisley. In 1819 another church was built for this parish on a new site. It was named St George's Church, and, since its erection, the Laigh Kirk Parish has been known also as St George's.]

JOHN WITHERSPOON, born Yester, 1757 East Lothian, 5th Feb. 1723, eldest son of James W., min. of that parish. On his mother's side he claimed to be descended from John Knox through the Reformer's daugh., Eliza Knox, wife of John Welsh of Ayr. He was educated at Haddington Grammar School and Univ. of Edinburgh. On 6th Sept. 1743 he was licen. by the Presb. of Haddington; was sometime assistant to his father; pres. by Alexander, tenth Earl of Eglinton, and ord. to Beith 11th April 1745. At the Rising in that year he put himself at the head of a body of volunteers and marched to Glasgow. Though ordered to return, he refused, went forward, and was taken prisoner after the battle of Falkirk, in which, however, he had no part. With other prisoners he was confined in Doune Castle until all of them managed to escape by means of a rope of knotted blankets. He was adm. to this charge 16th June 1757. He declined calls to Dublin and the Scots Kirk, Rotterdam. On 9th May 1768 he dem., having accepted the Presidency of Princeton College, New Jersey, U.S.A.; D.D. (St Andrews, 28th June 1769). During the Revolutionary War he supported the cause of the Colonies with such decision and ardour that the citizens of New Jersey elected him their representative in Congress, a position he held for seven years. He signed the Declaration of Independence 4th July 1776, and for some years afterwards was prominently occupied with the secular politics of America. In 1783 he resumed his academic duties, and soon after revisited Scotland with the object of procuring subscriptions for Princeton, which had suffered severely during the War. He was made LL.D. of Yale Univ. in 1785, and died at Princeton 6th Nov. 1794, having been afflicted with blindness for the last two years of his life. As a min. of the Church of Scotland he was considered the leader of the Evangelical party. Pious, learned, grave, judicious, he shaped the policy of that party and moulded its views in such a manner as to make the defeat of the Moderates both certain and enduring. One day, after he had carried in the General Assembly some important points against the Moderates, their leader, Robertson the historian, said to Witherspoon in his quiet way, "I think you have your men better disciplined than formerly." "Yes," replied Witherspoon, "by urging your politics too far you have compelled us to beat you with your own weapons." On Princeton he impressed his strong individuality. He brought its system of instruction into line with the Scottish school, and himself took an active share of lecturing, in which he greatly excelled. He was brilliant in conversation, and is said to have had a more imposing presence than any American leader except Washington. A colossal statue was erected in his honour in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, 20th Oct. 1876. He marr. (1) 2nd Sept. 1748, Elizabeth, daugh. of Robert Montgomery of Craighouse, and had issue—Anne, born 3rd July 1749 (marr. After his own settlement as a minister in Canada he threw himself whole-heartedly

THE MARTYRS' PARISH (Q.S.).

[A church opened here 20th Nov. 1835, was named in honour of the martyrs of Paisley. These two men, James Algie and John Park, were tenant farmers in the parish of Eastwood. On 3rd Feb. 1685 they were brought before the Royal Commissioners met in the town, and were charged with disowning the supremacy of King Charles in Church and State. The Court forthwith required them to take the Oath of Abjuration and the Test, warning them that refusal to do so would be fatal. Declining to comply with this demand, they were condemned, and were hanged that afternoon at the Cross of Paisley. Over the grave where they lie buried together has been set up in modern times a memorial obelisk, recording their faithful endurance. A chapel constitution was granted for the district on 30th May 1836. The parish of the Martyrs was disjoined from the High Kirk and Abbey Parish of Paisley on 6th July 1874.]

RENFREW.

[The church of Renfrew, dedicated to St James, was a prebend of Glasgow. Within it were chapels of St Ninian, St Conal, St Christopher, St Thomas the Apostle, and St Thomas the Martyr. Near the mill of Renfrew in the parish stood a chapel of St Mary, which, with its adjoining chapel lands, belonged to the Abbey of Paisley.

In Renfrew Church there is a fine recessed mural monument, with recumbent figures of John, first Lord Ross of Halkhead, and his first wife Marjorie, daughter of John Mure of Caldwell. Lord Ross died about the year 1500.

On an island in the Clyde, within this parish and close to the town of Renfrew, Walter, first High Steward, founded in 1163 the Cluniac priory of Renfrew, dedicated to St Mary and St James. In 1169, however, the High Steward removed this foundation to the new monastery which he then erected at Paisley. From that year the Abbey of Paisley owned various lands in this parish which had belonged to the priory of Renfrew. On these properties we still find such names as the Abbot's Inch and the Monks' Dyke. In 1861 Renfrew Church was enlarged and in great part rebuilt.]

THE WEST PARISH, FORMERLY
THE PARISH OF GREENOCK.

[On 18th Nov. 1589, at Holyrood House, King James VI. granted John Shaw of Greenock authority to erect a church for this rising town and its neighbourhood. The church was then built and opened 5th Oct. 1591. An Act of Parliament giving sanction to the proceedings was passed on 5th June 1592. By another Act, passed on 8th June 1594, this parish was disjoined by Parliament from Inverkip and erected as the Parish of Greenock, a name which it continued to bear till the erection of the East Parish in 1809. In 1636 the Lord Commissioners for the Plantation of Kirks enlarged the parish of Greenock by adding to it various lands taken from the parishes of Inverkip and Houston. There were of old two chapels within the bounds assigned to the parish of Greenock, besides the chapel of St Laurence in what is now the East Parish. One of these chapels stood at Chapelton, in the extreme east of the parish, and the other was the chapel of St Blaas at Kilblaas. There were two yearly fairs held of old times in Greenock—St Helen's Fair, and the Fair of St Laurence. The latter was held beside St Laurence's Chapel, whose site was near where the East Church now stands. The West Parish Church was rebuilt on a new site in 1840, and a tower added to it in 1854.]

LARGS.

[The vicarage of Largs belonged to the Abbey of Paisley. Its church was dedicated to St Columba. In early times, the lands now forming the parish of Cumbræ, and a considerable extent of what is now that of West Kilbride, were included in this parish. In 1812 the church of Largs was transferred to a new site; and in 1832 important additions and alterations were made upon the church then built. The north transept of the old church, which appears to have been rebuilt in the seventeenth century, still stands in the churchyard. Within it is a very fine sepulchral monument in memory of Sir Robert Montgomerie of Skelmorlie and his wife Margaret Douglas. Over this large and elaborate stone structure there still hang ancient pennons and the remains of armour. On the roof of the transept are skilfully painted heraldic devices, emblems, and inscriptions. Outside in the churchyard, but within the area which the church roof once covered, another massive seventeenth century monument is built against a surviving portion of the south wall of the old church. It commemorates the Boyles of Kelburne. St Colum's Fair, a well-known tryst, has been held at Largs from of old. It used to take place on St Columba's Day, the 9th of June, but in later times the fair day has been changed to the second Tuesday of June, old style. About half-way between Largs and Skelmorlie is St Fillan's Well; and near it once stood St Fillan's Chapel. A fine new church was built in 1892.]

DAVID NEILL, mentioned as min. 1564 10th Nov. 1564, but is spoken of as exhorter only in 1567. In 1590 he is styled "sometime reader at Largs, now in-dweller in Ayr."—[Glasg. Tests.; Reg. Min.; Ayr Hornings, 7th July 1590.]

In compliance with his wish, he was buried in the valley of the Noddle, about two miles from Largs, and close to the farmhouse of Middletown, where he died. A tombstone with a highly eulogistic Latin inscription still marks the spot. Somewhat lame in one foot, he is described as "having an excellent gift of preaching, and most taking with the people."—[Glasg. Tests.; Wodrow's Anal.; Macdonald's Days at the Coast; Muniments of the Royal Burgh of Irvine, vol. i.]

PRESBYTERY OF HAMILTON

[This Court was erected by the General Assembly in or about 1590. The Presbytery Register begins 6th Sept. 1687. There is a blank in the records from 28th Jan. 1777 to 26th April 1785.]

AIRDRIE (Q.S.).

[A chapel was opened at Airdrie 5th Feb. 1792. In or about 1833 a second mission chapel was opened in the town, and was called the East Chapel of Airdrie. On 31st May 1834 the General Assembly granted a chapel constitution, with a definite district, to this East Chapel. On 2nd June 1834 a similar chapel constitution was given to the older mission of 1792, and it was styled the West Chapel Mission. In 1835 a new church building was erected for the West Mission, to take the place of the old chapel built in the eighteenth century. A year or two later a third chapel was built in the town, and was named the High Chapel of Airdrie. On 28th May 1838 it also received a chapel constitution. The High Chapel had little success, and was retained by the Free Church in 1843. Meanwhile, owing to coal-working underneath the East Chapel, that building became unsafe; and in 1851 the East Mission also was brought to an end. There then remained only the West Mission, begun in 1791. On 13th March 1867 it was erected into the parish of Airdrie and was disjoined from New Monkland. There is a mission chapel in the parish at Rawyards.]

HUGH ARCHIBALD, M.A. (Glasgow 1628). He refused to conform to 1648 Episcopacy, and was probably engaged as a tutor. In 1638 the Glasgow Assembly recommended him for supply of vacancies, but he does not appear to have been settled in a parish till 1648, when he is mentioned as min. here. He dem. in 1658 "through want of peace in his ministry, occasioned by his dissuading the people from joining or complying with the English usurpers." He was called to New-battle 12th Aug. 1658, but the Synod of Lothian and Tweeddale refused to sustain his call, on the ground of failure to produce a certificate of character, 9th Feb. 1659.
He was allowed the stipend of Avendale for 1658 by Act of Parliament, 30th June 1661.
In 1669, and again in 1670, he was summoned before the Privy Council for preaching and marrying persons illegally. He was imprisoned in Stirling Castle, and, after 18th July 1672, in Dunbarton Castle. He petitioned the Privy Council 29th Aug.
1672, because of ill-health and poverty, and

He was granted indulgence at Avendale 3rd Sept. 1672. The first meeting of kirk-session at which he presided was 12th June 1673, and he was still in office at 12th March 1684. BOTHWELL.

[The church of Bothwell was dedicated to St Bride. On 10th Oct. 1398 it was constituted and endowed as a collegiate church by Archibald the Grim, Earl of Douglas. Within this church, in 1400, was celebrated the ill-fated marriage of the Earl's daughter Marjorie to David, Duke of Rothesay, son and heir of Robert III. The ancient edifice consists of a choir with a sacristy on its north side. To this were added, in 1833, a tower 120 feet high, with transepts, built at the west end of the choir, and a nave beyond these. The whole building has a fine external effect. The ancient choir and sacristy are kept in excellent order; but the nave, tower, and transepts alone are used as the parish church. In the choir there are fine mural monuments of some of the founder's kindred. There were two chapels in the parish, St Katherine's at Osbernstoun, now called Orbiston, and St Lasrach's at Lachop. There are now mission chapels within the bounds at Thornwood and the Palace Colliery.]

(Glasgow, 11th June 1798); died 26th May 1801, and was buried in the south-west corner of the church. A litigation to which he was a party, along with the Presb., in the case of William Allan, schoolmaster, is notable in so far as it was decided on appeal to the House of Lords that the Church of Scotland had jurisdiction in regard to the qualifications and trials of teachers in the old parish schools. The following epitaph is said to have been written by Thomas Brisbane, min. of Dunlop:—

"There lies interred beneath this sod That sycophantish man of God,
Who taught an easy way to heaven,
Which to the rich was always given.
If he get in, he'll look and stare
To find some out, that he put there."

CAMBUSLANG.

[The rectory of Cambuslang was a pre-bend of Glasgow. Its church was dedicated to St Cadoc. Beside the Kirk Burn, near the Parish Church, stood a chapel of St Mary, which gives its name to the Lands of Chapel. It was founded in 1379 by William Monypenny, rector of Cambus-lang. At the village of Spital in the parish there was a hospital of St Thomas.
Cambuslang Church was rebuilt in 1743.
There are mission chapels within the bounds at Morriston and Newton of Cambuslang.]

ADAM FOULIS, mentioned as min. of 1572 Newbattle [and Heriot], Nov. 1570; pres. by James VI. 28th July 1572.—
[Reg. Min.]

JOHN HOWISON [HEWISON, or 1579 HOWIE], born 1530, son of a Glasgow burgess; educated at Univ. of Glasgow; min. of Kelso in 1576; perhaps at Glasford, 1577-8; pres. by James, Earl of Arran (on the wish of James VI. and his Council, and by special request of the Commissioners for Planting Kirks); adm. after 9th April 1579; a member of Assembly in 1581. He opposed the appointment of Robert Montgomery, min. of Stirling, to the Archbishopric of Glasgow. As Moderator of the Presb. of Glasgow, he preached in the High Kirk there, 8th June 1582, when Montgomery appeared to claim the pulpit, having been appointed to enter upon his office that day. M. was accompanied by the Lord Provost, Sir Matthew Stewart of Minto [and of Morriston, parish of Cambuslang], the bailies of Glasgow, and others. Stewart ordered H. to desist, and the Presb. to disperse. The minister refused, whereupon the provost and his party laid violent hands on H., who was "smote on the face, pulled by the beard, had one of his teeth beat out, and put in the tolbuith lyke a theefe." The General Assembly excommunicated five of the assailants, but Stewart and another appeared and confessed, 9th Oct. 1582. From 23rd Nov. 1584 to 15th Aug. 1585, H. had charge of the parish of Perth, where a troublesome plague had broken out, and where he "ministered to the great comfort of the sufferers." Again declining the authority of the bishops, and failing to subscribe a bond imposed upon all "that gat assignation of stipends," he was imprisoned "in the Spey or Spy Tower of St Johnstoun" [the old name of Perth]. He was soon allowed his liberty, and had an interview with James VI., when "he made, says James Melvill, "a good exhortation, telling the truth, and meit for the purpose." He was equally outspoken in a sermon preached in Greyfriars Church, Edinburgh, in which he said, "I ken I will be noted. I regard not. What can the king get of me but my heid and my bluid? I shall never obey their injunction, like as I request all faithful folk to do the lyke." He was at once seized and confined in Falkland Palace, still persisting in his refusal to submit to the bishops, and specially to Montgomery, who, he declared, was "an infamous man, a monster, and an idol." An Act of Parliament annulling his presentation and appointment to Cambuslang was passed in 1587, when the benefice was given to Lord Claud Hamilton, third son of the Duke of Châtellherault and ancestor of the Dukes of Abercorn. [Lord Claud was regarded by the Romanist party as rector of the parish, having succeeded Halyton, rector about 1560.] In 1588 H. was app. Visitor for Nithsdale. By the Assembly of 1595 he was nominated a Commissioner of Platt [planting of churches] for the whole of Clydesdale. In 1597 he was libelled on a charge of issuing as genuine "a false, adulterate, and altered" Act of Parliament, purporting to be that passed in 1592, and entitled, "An Act for abolishing the Acts contrar to the Liberties of the Kirk." He had persuaded the king's printer, Robert Waldegrave, to circulate forty or fifty copies. Though declared innocent of falsifying the Act himself, H. was convicted of complicity in its circulation, and was accordingly confined for some months in the Castle of Edinburgh. Regaining his freedom, he was one of a committee appointed to consider an Act of the Privy Council for resisting the Spanish invasion. He returned to Cambuslang after 7th March 1596, the General Assembly having petitioned in his favour, "seeing he has obeyit sick things as was injoynit to him." He was now chiefly occupied with parish work—philanthropic and educational—endowing a school and making provision for the poor of Cambuslang. He founded a bursary in the University of Glasgow, which still yields an annual sum of £9 to the holder, and he gave 2000 merks for the support of two old men from Cambuslang, in the hospital at Hamilton. He died June 1618. He left his books to the Library of Glasgow University with other benefactions, "and last it is his will, and he ordains his executor [James Braidwood] that in case my Lord Marquis of Hammiltoun perform nocht his condition in erecting and building of ane hospitell for the poor conforme to the contract and foundation made betwixt his Lordship and him, that the said James sall cause charge his Lordship to perfyte the same for the foundation of swa guid ane work." There is a portrait of H. in the Trades' House, Glasgow, but damaged by fire. He marr. 13th July 1586, Agnes (died March 1612, probably s.p.), daugh. of Arnold Columes [Coluines, Collins], surgeon, Newhaven, France. Publications—A Discourse of Conscience (Edinburgh, 1600). He left in MS. 3 vols. of a reply to the Jesuit leader, Cardinal Bellarmine, which the Assembly of 1602 was asked to revise, and "if found worthie, to have it printed. This was not done.—[Reg. Assig.; Reg. of Deeds, xxvi.; Glasg. Tests.; *MS. ROBERT HAMILTON, probably only 1611 assistant to preceding min. in 1611; was pres. to Rutherglen, but apparently not settled, the Presb. of Glasgow considering "he is not meitt for it," 6th Feb. 1611.—[Glasg. Presb. Reg.; Glasg. Tests.]

ALEXANDER THOMSON, M.A.; min.
1619 in 1619; trans. to Second Charge, St Giles, Edinburgh, after 3rd July 1628.

PATRICK HAMILTON, M.A. (Glasgow); min. of Lochwinnoch in 1596; adm. to Abbey Parish, Paisley, 25th Dec. 1607; pres. by James, Marquess of Hamilton, and adm. after 3rd July 1628. He zealously supported the decisions of the Glasgow Assembly of 1638, of which he was a member. He had a "protection" from James Graham, Marquess of Montrose, 20th Aug. 1645, and was dep. soon afterwards, Wodrow says, for drunkenness. On 19th July 1648 he was on the eve of being reponed by the General Assembly when an unlucky chance spoiled all. "We were fashed with the opening of the mouths of deposed ministers," says Robert Baillie. "Poor Mr Patrick Hamilton, in the very nick when the Assembly was to grant all his desire, was rejected by his own unhappiness. He had let fall out of his pocket a poem too invective against the Church's proceedings. This, by a mere accident, came into the hands of Mr Mungo Law [min. of Greyfriars, Edinburgh], who gave it to Mr James Guthrie [min. of Lauder], and he did read it in the face of the Assembly, to Mr Patrick's confusion." In 1653 he was in extreme poverty, and died May 1658. He marr. (1) Grizel Semple, and had issue—Nathan, Robert, and Patrick: (2) Aug. 1604, Maisie Towris, and had issue—James: (3) 1629, Katherine Hamilton, a minister's daugh. She survived him, with issue; was recommended for assistance by the Synod of Lothian, 8th Nov. 1660; had a grant of £50 from Parliament out of vacant stipends, 12th July 1661, and in 1663 was 72 years old and "in great distress." JOHN BAILLIE, M.A. (Glasgow 1639); 1647 pres. by James, Duke of Hamilton, and adm. in 1647; died Dec. 1652, aged about 33. He marr. Elizabeth, daugh. of Henry Gibson, writer, Glasgow. She marr. (2) James Wallace, min. of Inchinnan.—[Baillie's Lett.; Glasg. Tests.; G. R. Sas., xiii., 343.]

ROBERT FLEMING, born Yester, Dec. 1630, of which parish his father, 1658 James F., was min., his mother being Jean Livingston [not, as sometimes stated, Martha (daugh. of John Knox), who was James Fleming's first wife]. His childhood was delicate, and he nearly lost his sight from a blow with a club. He had his early training at home. At fifteen he entered the Univ. of Edinburgh, and graduated M.A. with distinction, 26th July 1649. He studied divinity at St Andrews under Samuel Rutherford. He is believed to have served as a private soldier in the Scottish ranks at the battle of Dunbar, 3rd Sept. 1650. He was ord. here in 1653—still sickly—"his health so bad that it seemed hopeless." He was deprived by Act of Parliament 11th June, and Deceet of Privy Council 1st Oct. 1662. For the next ten years he remained in Scotland, preaching as he had opportunity. On 3rd Sept. 1672 he declined indulgence at Kilwinning, disobeyed a citation of the Privy Council, and fled to London, where his Scottish speech somewhat marred his usefulness. In 1674 he was living at West Nisbet, in Roxburghshire. On 30th Dec. 1677 he was adm. colleague [in succession to Robert MacWard] to John Hog [or Hoog], min. of the Scots Kirk, Rotterdam. Next year he was in Edinburgh, preaching at conventicles, and lying a prisoner in the Tolbooth. The Privy Council allowed him bail, June 1679, but refusing to conform to all its demands, he was sent back to confinement. On regaining his liberty, he returned to Rotterdam. He was charged in the High Court of Justiciary, 2nd April 1683, with harbouring and befriending several of the murderers of Archbishop Sharpe, but having proved his innocence, the accusation was departed from, 17th April 1684. After the Revolution he might have been restored to Cambuslang, but preferred to remain in Holland. While on a visit to London, he died of fever, 25th July 1694, after a short illness. He marr. Christian (died at West Nisbet in 1674), daugh. of Sir George Hamilton of Binny, Linlithgowshire, and had issue—Robert, his successor at Rotterdam, born 1660, died 21st May 1716, and six others. Wodrow characterises him as a “devout and pious man, most spiritual in his carriage and writings, much engaged in secret prayer and meditations, very affectionate to his servants and people, full of love, and of a peaceable temper.” Publications—The Fulfilling of the Scripture (Rotterdam, 1669; 2nd ed., 1671); The Faithfulness of God, etc. [Second Part]; The Great Appearances of God [Third Part]; all three parts, 2 vols. DAVID CUNNINGHAM, M.A. (Glasgow 1650); adm. 4th Sept. 1663; 1668 pres. by William, Duke of Hamilton; called 4th June, and adm. 22nd Aug. 1692. As an Episcopalian he was exceedingly unpopular. The parish was in a condition of almost constant ferment, and riots at the Manse were frequent. C. died about the Revolution time.—[Wodrow's Hist., ii., 3; *G. R. He marr. Janet, daugh. of Gilbert Hall, min. of Kirkliston, who survived him, and had issue—William, min. of Douglas; Cecilia (marr. Robert Paton, min. of Renfrew).—[Glasg. Tests.; Tombst.]

WILLIAM M'CULLOCH, born Whitehorn, 1691, son of the schoolmaster 1781 there; educated at Univs. of Edinburgh and Glasgow; M.A. (Glasgow, 26th April 1712); licen. by Presb. of Wigtown 28th Aug. 1722; tutor in the family of

The ministry of M. was memorable for that extraordinary religious movement known as the “Cambuslang Wark,” which occurred during the spring and summer of 1742. M., who is described by Dean Stanley as “no wild fanatic, but a learned, unostentatious scholar, a cautious and prudent parish minister,” was hardly remarkable as a preacher. In the course of his ordinary preaching, however, the people became spiritually awakened. The news of what was happening soon spread, and multitudes from every part of Scotland crowded to Cambuslang to see the strange work. Many ministers came to M.’s assistance, and amongst them George Whitefield, who tells us that he preached to congregations which numbered between thirty and forty thousand. “It was ten o’clock at night when Whitefield rose up to speak. The tent stood on the margin of a little stream; in front of this rose a green bank in the form of an amphitheatre, still known as the ‘conversion brae.’ It was wonderfully adapted to the purpose to which it was now applied, and Whitefield, in one of his bold figures of speech, spoke of it as a temple built by God Himself for this great concourse to worship in. As the preacher’s deep voice, in the twilight of the autumn eve, rolled over the vast multitude, it was answered by sighs and sobs, and soon the whole audience was melted in tears.” Whitefield’s visit was the high-water mark of the Revival. In writing of it nine years afterwards, M. had to lament many backsliders, but still he spoke of hundreds who from that time forward had been evidently changed. DAVID MAYNE, eldest son of James 1607 M., wright Burgess, Glasgow; M.A.
(Glasgow 1598), min. in 1607. In 1655 he is described as "ane honest, old, and faithfull minister" who, "being becum unable to preach through old age, disponit lang before his decease, all his books, goods, geir, etc." and retired to the house of his daugh., Janet, wife of John Miller of Coltersheuch, parish of Shotts, where he died, FATHER OF THE CHURCH, in March 1670, aged about 98.—[Reg. Assig.; Glasg.

JOHN LAUDER [born 20th Jan. 1631, 1659 not 1671 as in Vol. I., p. 179]; adm.
3rd May 1659; deprived by Act of Parliament 11th June, and Decreet of Privy Council 1st Oct. 1662, "preaching his farewell sermon on the Sabbath following."
He was adm. as an "indulged" min. here, 3rd March 1670, but having refused to read the proclamations regarding the deliverance of the King and the Duke of York from the Rye House Plot, his indulgence was withdrawn, 8th Oct. 1684. He returned at the Toleration in 1687, and was trans. to West Calder in 1689.—[Wodrow's Hist., i., 327; The Bass Rock, 92.]

[WALTER BIRNIE, a native of Banff-shire; M.A. (King's College, Aberdeen, 13th July 1658); studied divinity at the Univ. of Oxford; app.
probably only assistant (by the Synod) 28th April 1664. In 1670, John Lauder having been granted indulgence, returned to his parish, whereupon B., "being thrown out of bread," petitioned the Privy Council and was allowed a sum of 200 merks payable from fines. He became assistant at Campsie 15th Jan. 1679, and was in receipt of charity from the Kirk-session of Tynninghame, 20th March 1680 to 1st May 1686.

He had a grant of 400 merks from Parliament out of vacant stipends belonging to the Univ. of Glasgow 15th June 1686, and a sum of £5, 16s. from the Kirk-session of Cramond 27th May 1688. He died 19th June 1708, aged 74. It does not appear that he ever was min. of the parish, and the statement that he "deserted at the Revolution" is unlikely. He was afflicted with blindness during most of his life.—

GLASFORD, OR GLASSFORD.

[The church of Glasford belonged to St Mary's Collegiate Church of Lochwinnoch. In 1633 the parish church was rebuilt at Glasford, where its ruins still stand in the churchyard. In 1820 a more central parish church was built at Westquarter, and was considerably renovated in 1897. In the old churchyard at Glasford there is a pillar stone, erected in 1772 by Sir John Gordon of Earlstoun, Bart., to mark the burial-place of his great-grandfather, William Gordon of Earlstoun. When on his way from Galloway to join the forces of the Covenanters at Bothwell, the Laird of Earlstoun was overtaken by a party of English dragoons and was shot dead, 22nd June 1679.]

HAMILTON, OF OLD CADYOW.

[The rectory of Cadyow was a prebend belonging to the Dean of Glasgow. In 1451 James, first Lord Hamilton, built a new and larger church for the parish on a site very near where Hamilton Palace now stands. This new place of worship he endowed as a collegiate church. At the same time he caused the name of the parish to be changed to Hamilton. In the church then erected there was a Chapel of St Mary. In 1459 Lord Hamilton founded a hospital also within the parish. This was dedicated to St Mary of Bethlehem. In 1732 the parish church was removed to the town of Hamilton. Yearly fairs were held at Hamilton in honour of St Laurence and St Martin. In Hamilton churchyard a stone marks the place where are buried the heads and right arms of four Clydesdale men taken prisoners in the Pentland Rising. These men, John Parker, Gavin Hamilton, James Hamilton, and Christopher Strang, were hanged at Edinburgh on 7th Dec. 1666. As was the custom, their bodies were buried beside the gallows, but their heads and right arms were publicly exposed at Hamilton in their own country.]

He was a member of Assembly 24th April 1581, and app. by the Privy Council, 6th March 1589, a commissioner within the bounds of Clydesdale for the maintenance and defence of true religion; still min. here in 1596.—[*Reg. EAST KILBRIDE AND TORRENS.

[East Kilbride and Torrens.—These two parishes were united in 1589.

East Kilbride.—The church of Kilbride was a prebend belonging to the Precentor of Glasgow Cathedral. It was dedicated to St Bride. In March 1596 the parish of Kilbride was disjoined from the Presb.
of Glasgow and added to that of Hamilton.
In 1725 the lands of Busby were detached from this parish and annexed to Carmun-nock. The church of East Kilbride was rebuilt in 1774. A tower was added in 1816.

Torrens.—A Hospital of St Leonard, with a chapel attached to it, was founded at Torrens in the thirteenth century.]

JOHN COLVILL, born about 1543, was second son of Robert C. of 1567 Cleish and Margaret, daugh. of James Lindsay of Dowhill. He was educated at St Leonard's College, St Andrews, where he graduated M.A. about 1561. In 1567 he was settled in this charge. James VI. app. him Chantor or Precentor of Glasgow, 20th April 1569. In 1570 he is spoken of as being "presently at the point of excommunication," doubtless because of alleged acts of non-residence. Carmunnock and Eaglesham were added to the charge in 1574. He was created Master of Requests in 1578, but appears as min. here in 1585, when he left. He participated in the Raid of Ruthven in 1582, and was twice ambassador to the Court of England, where he made himself specially obnoxious to the Catholic party. He was imprisoned in Edinburgh Castle on a charge of treason, 15th July 1583. Having obtained his freedom, he was given a license to "pass furth of this realm," but not to England or Ireland, and to remain absent for three years. He persisted in going to England, and was forfeited by Parliament, 22nd Aug. 1584, a sentence which was apparently reduced, for, in Nov. 1586, he was still styled Chantor of Glasgow, and a deferred payment of his pension as Master of Requests was ordered to be made. On 2nd June 1587 he became a Senator of the College of Justice, succeeding his uncle, Alexander Colvill, Commendator of Culross, but nineteen days later he resigned the post in favour of the uncle aforesaid. He sat also in the Scots Parliament in 1587 as Commissioner for Stirling. Soon afterwards he associated himself with the turbulent and treasonable practices of Francis, Earl of Bothwell, and was obliged to quit the kingdom, and he probably never returned to Scotland. He was in Holland in 1597; in 1599 there is mention of his being in London in a state of destitution, and offering his services in vain to Sir Robert Cecil; in 1600 he was living in Paris, and paying occasional visits to Rome. He renounced Protestantism, became Roman Catholic, and died at Paris, Nov. 1605, "in great want and misery."

He marr. July 1572, Janet, sister of John Russell, advocate, and had issue—Robert; John, bapt. 29th March 1590; Thomas; Margaret (marr. Sir Jerome Lindsay of Annatland, advocate, Lord Lyon King-of-Arms, son of David L., Bishop of Ross); a daugh. (marr. Henry Stewart of White-law). Papæ Leonis Vndecimi Gaudia* (Paris, 1605); "Original Letters" (1582-1603) [edited, with Memoir, by David Laing for the Bannatyne Club] (Edinburgh, 1858); Colvill was probably (as Laing thinks) author of The History and Life of King James the Sext [edited by Thomas Thomson for the Bannatyne Club] (Edinburgh, 1825) [this work was first published anonymously as Memoirs of the Affairs of Scotland, containing a full and impartial account of the Revolution in that kingdom, begun in 1567. Faithfully publish'd from an authentick MS. (London, 1706; reprinted 1753 and 1767). Edited, with interpolations and additions, by David Craufurd]. The genuine work from 1566 to 1582 was edited by Malcolm Laing in 1804.—[*Reg. Wodrow says of him that "he was a min. of great solidity and learning, and though he had no freedom to fall in with the indulgence himself, yet he was very opposite to division upon that score, and both heard the indulged mins., and pressed his people at Kilbride, among whom he lived, to do so. He had been singularly useful in that parish, where there were a great many Quakers and Separatists; and yet, by his painful and excellent preachings, and other labours, he reclaimed most part of them." He died 22nd Dec. 1673, aged about 57. He marr. Eupham Dundas, and had issue—Andrew; Susanna; and others. "He had a son lately dead before him, and seeing him dissected and the physicians finding fault with his vital parts, he presently apprehends a faultiness in his own, which apprehension stuck with him even to his death, which the physicians took to be the cause of his sickness: so strong is the power of apprehension." JAMES CURRIE, M.A. (Edinburgh, 1649 15th April 1645); called 27th May 1649 1649, and adm. soon afterwards; deprived by Act of Parliament 11th June, and Decreet of Privy Council 1st Oct. 1662.
On three occasions he was charged before the Privy Council with attending Conventicles—in 1669, when he did not com-pear; on 7th Aug. 1677, when the case was dismissed, on his asserting that he went only to “expostulate with the preacher for withdrawing his people from him”; and on 2nd July 1684, when the charge was found not proven. He accepted an “indulgence” in his own parish 3rd Sept.
1672. This so incensed the people that they refused to hear him preach, and he was obliged to shut the church. He failed to read the proclamation anent the deliverance of the King and the Duke of York from the Rye House Plot, and his indulgence was withdrawn 8th Oct. 1684.
He was put in prison, but set at liberty on 30th Oct., “upon condition that he preach none, or forfeit his bond of 5000 merks.” He was again imprisoned, but was liberated on the same terms, 12th March 1685. He returned at the Toleration, and officiated from 30th Aug. 1687 to 14th Feb.
1688; died before 21st March 1688, and

JAMES MILLAR, M.A.; ord. 26th 1723 Sept. 1728. The call was much opposed by the tenants of Sir James Inglis of Murdiston, and others.
On the Sunday when M. had been appointed to preach, some twenty-six of these men barricaded the doors of the church and abused those who attempted to enter. The Baron-bailie endeavoured to read the Riot Act, but the paper was torn from his hands and destroyed. Many were injured in the mêlée that followed. Ultimately M. preached, not without difficulty, from the window of an inn where he was staying, the rabble threatening to throw stones while he was in the act of praying.
He was trans. to Second Charge, Hamilton, 27th Sept. 1737.

DAVID ORR, M.A. (Glasgow, 3rd May 1726); licen. by Presb. of Hamilton 1788 30th Sept. 1732; called 23rd Feb., and ord. 9th May 1738; dem. 9th Dec. 1753; was found dead by the wayside, near Cleland, 25th Feb. 1758. His settlement in the parish was much opposed. A number of the parishioners formed a congregation in connection with the Associate Presbytery. He marr. 27th Nov. 1739, Jane Dick, who died 15th Feb. 1771, and had issue—John, born 15th Oct. 1740.

JAMES BAILLIE, pres. by James, Duke 1754 of Hamilton, June, and ord. 7th Nov. 1754; trans. to Bothwell 2nd Sept. 1762.

LAURENCE WELLS, probably a 1768 native of Dumfriesshire; educated at Univ. of Edinburgh; M.A. (27th April 1742); licen. by Presb. of Kirkcaldy 21st Sept. 1752; pres. by the Trustees for James George, Duke of Hamilton, Oct. 1762. An extraordinary and prolonged opposition followed his appointment. The Presb. record says that the objection was "universal by all ranks and orders of men in the parish, with the single exception of one heritor." Various allegations were made against W., but evidence was produced that, as regarded certain of these, he had been absolved by the Church six years before receiving license. The Presb., finding insuperable difficulties in the way of a settlement, requested the Trustees to reconsider their presentation to the vacant parish. This the Trustees refused to do, and the case went before the Church Courts. W.'s trials were not sustained by the Presb., on the ground that his attainments in divinity were "very low and mean," that he was "unacquainted with the rules of composition," and "greatly wanting in the talents necessary for communicating knowledge, and making a suitable impression upon the minds of common and ordinary hearers." The General Assembly of 1765 instructed the Presb. to proceed de novo, and conduct the examination in writing. That was done, but the Presb. saw no reason for changing its opinion. The Commission of Assembly, 3rd June 1766, heard W., and unanimously approved of his trials. Not till 25th May 1768, however—and then only when ordered by the Assembly—were steps taken to carry out the ordination. Having met for that purpose, the members of Presb. encountered a "tumultuous concourse of people, who, armed with clubs and staves, told them in a threatening manner that, if they proceeded to the ordination, the most fatal consequences would follow." The Presb. "was refused access to the churchyard, and every house about the place, the doors being locked, and the keys removed." Another attempt a week later fared likewise, and finally the Presb. "being apprehensive that any future attempt to ordain Mr W. at the church of Shotts would be rendered unsuccessful or dangerous," he was ordained in that Court's own meeting-place at Hamilton, 16th Aug. 1768. As a result the bulk of the people left the parish church, and formed at Shottsburn a congregation of the Associate Burgher Seceders. W. died unmarr., 27th Jan. 1786.—[The Scots Mag., xxvi.-xxx.; Annals of U.P. Church, 366; Grossart's Historic Notices of Shotts, 82.]

CARLUKE, OF OLD EGLIS- MALUAG.

[The vicarage of Carluke belonged to the priory of Lesmahagow. Its church, often called the Forest Kirk, was dedicated to St Andrew; but there was an earlier dedication to St Luag, or Maluag. On the lands of Braidwood, in the south of the parish, there was a chapel of St Oswald. The lands of Spitalshiels, within the bounds, belonged to the hospital of St Leonard, near Lanark. Carluke Church was rebuilt in 1799.]

For not observing the Anniversary of the Restoration he was summoned before the Privy Council, 8th July 1673, and again 11th Aug. 1677, when he was fined in one-half of his stipend. For a similar offence his indulgence was withdrawn, 8th Oct. 1684, and he was ordered to leave the country. From May 1685 to 21st Sept. 1686 he was a prisoner on the Bass, and set at liberty only because of advanced age and failing health. He was living at Waygateshaw, Carluke, 28th May 1687, as appears from a bond in his favour of that date. It is uncertain whether he returned to Douglas or not, or if he survived the Revolution. He was buried at Carluke, where his epitaph may still be seen:—

A faithful, holy pastor here lies hid—
One of a thousand—Mr Peter Kid:
Firm as a stone, but of a heart contrite,
A wrestling, praying, weeping Israelite.
A powerful preacher, far from ostentation,
A son of thunder and of consolation.
His face, his speech, and humble walk might tell That he was in the Mount and Peniel.

He was in Patmos, and did far surpass In fixed steadfastness the Rocky Bass.
His love to Christ made his life to be spent In feeding flocks and kids beside his tent.
His frail flesh could not equal paces keep
With his most willing spirit, but fell asleep.
His soul's in heaven, where it was much before,
His flesh rests here in hopes of future gloire.
Passenger! ere thou go, sigh, weep, and pray—
Help, Lord, because the godly do decay.

He marr. Susanna (died March 1697),

On a fly-leaf of Brown's Exposition of the Romans, he wrote some observations headed "Mistakes in this Commentary," which so shocked the religious feelings of the owner of the volume [Robert Lawrie] as to evoke a printed reply entitled "Mistakes of a Clergyman corrected by a Weaver, 1770." [The church of Carnwath was dedicated to St Mary. It formed a prebend for the treasurer of the Chapter of Glasgow. In 1424 Sir Thomas Somerville of Carnwath rebuilt the church, and endowed it with a collegiate foundation. There still stands in the churchyard the fine north transept of the old church, probably added to it in the sixteenth century. It is used as a place of burial by the Lockharts of Lee. Within it is a stately altar tomb with recumbent figures of Hew, seventh Lord Somerville, who died in 1549, and his second wife, Janet, daughter of William Maitland of Lethington. She died in 1550. There was a chapel in the parish at Muirhall. Carnwath Church was rebuilt in 1798, and again in 1866. There are mission chapels within the bounds at Auchengray and Tarbrax.] tour in Scotland in 1803. Miss Wordsworth writes in her Diary for 20th Aug.:

 "The people of the village, who were making hay, all stared at us and our carriage. We inquired the road of a middle-aged man, dressed in a shabby black coat, at work in one of the hay fields; he looked like the minister of the place, and when he spoke we felt assured he was so, for he was not sparing of hard words, which, however, he used with great propriety, and he spoke like one who had been accustomed to dictate. Our car wanted mending in the wheel, and we asked him if there was a blacksmith in the village. 'Yes,' he replied, but when we showed him the wheel he told William that he might mend it himself without a blacksmith and he would put him in the way; so he fetched a hammer and nails and gave his directions, which William obeyed, and repaired the damage entirely to his own satisfaction and the priest's, who did not offer to lend any assistance himself; not as if he would not have been willing in case of need, but as if it were more natural for him to dictate and because he thought it more fit that William should do it himself. He spoke much about the propriety of every man's lending all the assistance in his power to travellers and with some ostentation or self-praise." He marr. 3rd Oct. 1773, Isabella M'Kune, who died 1st June 1827, and had issue—Christina, Elizabeth, and John, all above the age of twenty-one in 1801; Mary, born 1st April 1783; Douglas, born 23rd Dec. 1791. — [Tombst.; Dorothy Wordsworth's Tour in Scotland (1803), p. 26.]

[The church of Douglas was dedicated to St Bride. It was a prebend of Glasgow. Of the ancient church, the choir and the south aisle are still standing, being carefully preserved by the Earl of Home, whose ancestors lie buried within. To several of these members of the race of the Earls of Douglas fine monuments have been erected and survive in the ruined building. It contained also altars of St Mary and St Thomas. There were in the parish three chapels, one founded by James IV. at Parochholm, another at Glentagart (Gleann an t-sagairt = the priest's glen), and the third at Anderson, with a holy well beside it. There was a yearly fair at Douglas on St Barnabas' Day the 11th of June.]

He left forty merks to the poor of the parish, commending his wife and family "to the Lord of Angus and the Sheriff of Teviotdale to use their friendly mediation with my children's uncle [William Wilkie], whom the Lord has blessed with a plentiful fortune for helping their mean portions." ANDREW SYMSON [SIMSON], born 1686 probably in England about 1638, youngest son of Andrew S., son of Alexander S., min. of Mertoun, Berwickshire, and grandson of Andrew S., min. of Dunbar. [S.'s father is described as a "minister of God's Word," but he never held a charge in Scotland. He was author of two learned treatises—An Exposition upon the Second Epistle of St Peter (London, 1632), and a Lexicon, Anglo-Graeco-Latinum Novi Testamenti (London, 1658). He also published, in 1655, a new edition of Thomas Wilson's Christian Dictionarie.] He was educated at the High School and Univ. of Edinburgh; M.A. (19th July 1661). From 2nd March 1661 to 4th May 1663 he was Latin master in the Grammar School of Stirling, where his brother Matthias was min.; was sometime amanuensis to Sir George Mackenzie, Lord Advocate. He was licen. by George, Bishop of Edinburgh, 23rd Jan. 1663, and adm. to Kirkinner, Wigtownshire, that year. His "entry," he says, was so peaceable, so orderly, and so very generally assented to, "that he experienced no trouble whatever from the people, only two of whom joined the Presbyterian Rising of 1666. In 1679, following the successes of the Covenanters at Drumclog and Bothwell Bridge, he was obliged to accept protection from Alexander Stewart, Earl of Galloway, his former "condisciple" at Edinburgh. The parishioners deserted his ministrations, and he was left with less than a handful of hearers. On 15th Oct. 1684 he gave in a List of Disorderly from his parish, on which is found the name of Margaret M'Lauchlan, one of the two women known as the "Wigtown Martyrs." In 1686 he was pres. to this charge by James, Marquess of Douglas; was coll. on 6th, and inst. on 12th Jan. He either left of his own accord, or was outed after the Revolution. He denied that he was "an abdicat preacher," as a pamphlet of William Forbes had described him (1706): "Neither did I abdicat, nor was I abdicated." In 1690 he was in Stirling; on 28th June 1692, at Dalclathick, Glenartney, Perthshire; he appears as a burgess of Edinburgh in 1698. Prior to that date he had begun business as a bookseller and printer "in the Cowgate, near the Foot of the Horse Wynd" [now Guthrie Street], where much of his work was the production of Jacobite tracts and pamphlets. He died suddenly, 20th Jan. 1712, and was buried in Greyfriars' churchyard. He published a considerable quantity of his own verse, which hardly rises above mediocrity. One piece—"An Elegy on the Unexpected Death of the Vertuous Lady, Mrs Janet Dalrymple, Lady Baldone, Younger"—furnished Sir Walter Scott with material for his Bride of Lammermoor, Janet Dalrymple being the "Lucy Ashton" of the novel. His library, consisting of several thousands of volumes, was sold by auction after his death, when a catalogue was printed entitled, Bibliotheca Symsoniana (36 pp.; Edinburgh, 1712). From 25th Oct. 1664 to 27th April 1671, he was clerk to the Synod of Galloway. The register in which he recorded its proceedings was recovered by Principal John Lee, in an old bookshop in Edinburgh. In 1856 it was edited by John Milligan, min. of Twynholm, and published by John Nicholson, Kirkcudbright, under the title of The Register of the Synod of Galloway from Oct. 1664 to April 1671. Symson marr. Jane Inglis, of whom nothing is known, and had issue—Andrew; David, under-keeper of the library of Holyrood House and Historiographer Royal; Matthias, born about 1672, died 1742. [He was sometime printer in Edinburgh; M.A. (Edinburgh, 23rd June 1699); D.D. (Edinburgh, 1738); successively rector of Moorby, Lincolnshire, and 29th May 1728, of Wennington, Essex, and Prebendary of Lincoln; author of Geography Compendiz'd, or the World Survey'd (Edinburgh, 1702), and other works.] Publications—Octupla, hoc est, octo Paraphrases poetice Psalmi CIV. authoribus totidem Scotis (Edinburgh, 1696): [the versions were those of George Buchanan, George Eglissham, Thomas Reid, Arthur Johnston, Henry Henrison, William Stuart, Ninian Paterson, and Walter Deniston]; Tripatriarchicon: Or, the Lives of the three Patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, Extracted forth of the Sacred Story, and digested into English Verse (Edinburgh, 1705); De Gestis Illustrissimi Herois Gulielmi Vallæ, Scotiæ olim Custodis Collectanea Varia (Edinburgh, 1705); A Letter from A. Symson to Mr William Forbes, advocat [1st Aug. 1706] (n.p.); Unio Politico - Poetico - Joco - Seria (Edinburgh, 1706); Elegies (n.p., n.d.). He edited Sir George Mackenzie's Laws and Customs of Scotland in Matters Criminal (Edinburgh, 1699; 2nd ed.); Mackenzie's Observations upon the XVII. Act, Parliament XXIII., K. James VI., against Depositions made in Defraud of Creditors (Edinburgh, 1699); and Sir Alexander Seton's Treatise of Mutilation and Dismemberment (Edinburgh, 1699.) For "Δευτεροσκοπία, or a Brief Discourse concerning the Second Sight, commonly so called," he wrote an Account of the Author [John Frazer, min. of Tiree], who died while the work was passing through the press (Edinburgh, 1707). S. was publisher of The Edinburgh Flying Post (1707), and printer of the Edinburgh Courant Reviewed (1707). He may have been also author of A New Vocabulary, English and Latine (Edinburgh, 1707; 2nd ed.); of the Good Expedient for Innocence and Peace [of which no extant copy is known]; and of A True and Impartial Account of the Most Rev. Father in God, Dr James Sharpe, Archbishop of St Andrews, with a Narrative of his Murder. He left in manuscript Ane Alphabetical Account of all the Churches or Paroch Kirks in Scotland by Mr Andrew Symson; as well as the most important of his works, The Large Description of Galloway. This book was drawn up in reply to a circular sent throughout Scotland by Sir Robert Sibbald, Geographer Royal, requesting information for a descriptive account of the whole country. It was edited by Thomas Maitland, afterwards Lord Dundrennan, and was published at Edinburgh in 1823. In 1841 it appeared as an Appendix to vol. ii. of William Mackenzie's History of Galloway, and in 1907 it was incorporated in vol. ii. of the Macfarlane Geographical Collections, issued by the Scottish History Society.—[*Edin. LANARK.

[The church of Lanark was dedicated to St Kentigern. After 1150 it belonged to the Abbey of Dryburgh. Its ruins stand in the churchyard outside the town; hence called the Outkirk, sometimes the High Kirk. Within the burgh stood the Chapel of St Nicholas, with four altars, one of which was dedicated to St Catherine, commonly called the Laigh Kirk. The High Kirk was abandoned in 1668, the congregation meeting in St Nicholas Church, which was declared the legal parish kirk in 1708. In 1774 [not 1777 as in Chalmers's Caledonia—the Town Council records are conclusive on this point] it was rebuilt. Half a mile east of the town stood the Hospital of St Leonard. The parish of Nemphar and Cartland was united to Lanark in the reign of William the Lion. There was a chapel at Cleghorn. At the West Port was the monastery of the Greyfriars, said to have been founded by Robert I. There is a mission chapel within the bounds at New Lanark.]

In 1588 the vicarage was held, without collation, by Gavin Hamilton, servitor to Lord Chancellor Maitland of Thirlstane, and it is stated that L. did not reside in his parish, "because he had other kirks annexed where he findeth a residence."—[Lanark Burgh Records; Feu Charters of Kirklands, ii, 195.]

WILLIAM BIRNIE, M.A.; pres. to the 1597 vicarage by James VI. 28th Dec. 1597; trans. to Ayr in 1612.

WILLIAM LIVINGSTON of Burn- 1618 syde, Kilsyth, born Monyabroch [Kilsyth], 1576, only son of Alexander L., min. of that parish; educated at Univ. of Glasgow; M.A. (1596); licen. by Presb. of Glasgow 27th Jan. 1596; app. to supply Kilsyth (in succession to his father, who had been dep.) and ord. 13th July 1596; pres. to the full charge (on the request of the parishioners) by Alexander, Earl of Linlithgow, and adm. 15th July 1599. On 18th Oct. 1607, James VI. addressed a letter to the Privy Council, fulminating against L.'s denunciations of Episcopacy, and ordering him to be confined to his parish. "Let this wild young minister keep to his mosses and his badgers. They are his native place, and the best place for him." L. was accordingly virtually a prisoner within the bounds of his parish for five years. He was dep. in 1613, but was pres. by the King to this charge on 1st Oct. of the same year. For preaching against the Five Articles of Perth, he was again dep. by the Court of High Commission, 28th March 1620, and again confined to his old parish of Kilsyth. In 1623 he was restored to Lanark, and was a second time before the Court of High Commission for allowing his son John

[min. at Killinchy, Ireland, who had been dep. for non-conformity] to assist him at a Communion in 1635. He was given the honour of heading the five hundred mins. who welcomed the Marquess of Hamilton, the King's Commissioner, at Leith in 1637, and of laying before him the whole case of the suffering Church. Next year he was a member of the Glasgow Assembly, and though Henderson was Moderator, L. was probably the ruling spirit of its proceedings. He died before Oct. 1641. A remarkable dream which he had in 1623 is said to have been the means of saving a neighbour's life. L. was lying in bed fast asleep in his house at Lanark, when he was awakened by hearing the words, "Arise, go and help Crossrigs, for he is in great hazard." This was repeated three times, and L. set out for Crossrigs, a small estate in Lesmahagow parish, about four miles distant. The door was opened by the laird himself, who had been sitting up late. L. explained his errand, found that his friend, suffering from extreme spiritual depression, had sent to Edinburgh for catsbane, which he declared he had been directed to take. L. was able to dissuade him from his purpose, with the result that the story of the dream circulated far and wide, and was accepted as a direct intervention of Providence. He marr. (1) 6th Jan. 1601, Agnes (died 1617, aged 32, "a rare pattern of meekness and piety"), daugh. of Alexander Livingston, portioner, Falkirk, brother of the Laird of Belstane, and had issue—John, min. of Ancrum; Samuel; Barbara; Lillias; Anna (marr., cont. 5th May 1627, Thomas Vassie, min. of Torphichen [son of William V., burgess of Lanark]); Margaret (marr. 4th Jan. 1632, Matthew Young, schoolmaster in Lanark), died Nov. 1632; William, apprenticed to James Nairn, merchant, Edinburgh, 21st July 1630; (2) Nicolas Somervell, and had issue—Jean (marr. Sept. 1651, Gideon Penman, min. of Crichton); Martha; Janet, died 3rd April 1690; Henry: (3) Marion Weir, who died s.p. 7th Jan. 1632. ROBERT BIRNIE, born 27th March 1608 [Easter Day], third son of William B., min. of this parish in 1597; educated at Univ. of St Andrews; M.A. (1627); licen. by Presb. of Ayr; ord. to Shotts in 1632; trans. to Houston in 1634; pres. by Charles I. 18th March, and coll. 28th Nov. 1643; was a member of the Commissions of Assembly 1645 and 1647; dem. at the Revolution, and died FATHER OF THE CHURCH 29th Jan. 1691. He was noted for his piety and learning, and he had not a little humour. In a sharp contest between the tailors' and shoemakers' crafts on a question of precedence, B. solved the difficulty by the witty distich:—

"It is weel kened throughout our toun, We draw on our hose afore our shoon."

He left £100 to the poor of the parish. He marr. Christian, second daugh. of Patrick Melvill, D.D., Professor of Oriental Languages, New College of St Andrews, and had issue—John, min. of Caerlaverock; Elizabeth (marr. 2nd Jan. 1657, Thomas Kirkcaldie, min. of Dalsenf; Janet (marr. 8th Dec. 1668, John Irvine, min. of Peterculter). JOHN BANNATYNE, born 1641, said 1688 to be son of John B. of Corehouse, parish of Lesmahagow. Nothing is known of his earlier career. Though called "of Corehouse," he was probably only a connection of Sir John B. of Corehouse, who sold the estate in 1694. Wodrow mentions his imprisonment, 24th July 1683, "for rebellion, reset of rebels, and other treasonable crimes." On 1st April 1685 he was again before the Court, but was liberated on 11th Sept. following upon giving his bond and paying a fine. Later, his name appears on a list of Fugitives, where he is described as "brother of the Laird of Corehouse." He was apparently licensed as a preacher some years before 3rd April 1688, when he was appointed to supply Lesmahagow "as occasion served." He preached in a meeting-house in Lanark, and "took possession of the church without any title," on the demission of Robert Birnie. On 4th Feb. 1689 the Town Council allowed him £60 Scots yearly for house rent till he obtained the benefit of the legal stipend. He appears to have been legally settled as min. shortly before 20th March 1690; was a member of Assembly 1690, 1692, and 1693; clerk of the General Assembly 17th Dec. 1695-9, and a member of the Commissions of 1703 and 1706. He strongly opposed the Parliamentary Union, and died shortly before it was consummated 22nd March 1707. "He was a man sincerely pious, eloquent, bold, and enterprising; famed for his great gift of prayer." He marr. 11th June 1689, Elizabeth Young (buried 8th May 1710), widow of David Sharp, and had issue—Rebecca. JOHN ORR, M.A. (Edinburgh, 23rd 1708 June 1699); chaplain to Sir William Denholm of Westshields; licen. by Presb. of Lanark 11th Sept 1705; called 23rd Feb., and ord. 4th Aug. 1708; died 3rd Aug. 1748. In 1709, and again in 1714, the Presb. prohibited him from continuing the practice of bowing from the pulpit after sermon to heritors in church. He marr. (1) Susanna (died 29th Jan. 1731 [in the Introduction to Hay's Diary the date is given as 1723]), daugh. of Andrew

Hay of Craginethan, and Mary, daugh. of Sir James Maxwell of Calderwood, and had issue—Andrew; Anna; Margaret; Eupham; John: (2) 7th July 1737, Jean (died s.p. 20th Oct. 1754), daugh. of William Foulis of Woodhall, and had issue—Helen, born 26th Jan. 1738; David, born 29th March 1742; Robert, born 9th Aug. 1744; Margaret, born 3rd April 1747.—[Lanark Burgh Records; Lanark Tests.; Tombst.]

ROBERT DICK, M.A.; pres. by John
1750 Lockhart of Lee 23rd Sept. 1748. The Magistrates of Lanark, and also the Crown, claimed right of presentation, and nominated another min. The General Assembly ordered D.'s ordination to be proceeded with. Great opposition followed, and D. was ultimately ord. (in the Tron Church, Glasgow) 4th Oct. 1750. Even after that had been done, litigation was encountered, the case going to the House of Lords. Stormy and hostile demonstrations were frequent in the parish, and the matter came to an end only by D.'s translation to New Greyfriars', Edinburgh, 11th Oct. 1754.—[Scots Mag., xii.-xv.; Connell's *Paroch. WILLIAM MENZIES, born Kinghorn, 1793 Fife, 6th Dec. 1763, son of William M., farmer and boat builder; educated at Univ. of Edinburgh; was employed as a clerk in the Stamp Office, Edinburgh, 1780-93; licen. by Presb. of Kirkcaldy 1st Sept. 1790; pres. by George III. in Sept., and ord. 27th Dec. 1793; clerk of Presb. 31st March 1813 to 30th March 1842; died 8th May 1848. In 1795, when he introduced the Paraphrases and discontinued "reading the line," a dissentient minority organised a congregation in connection with the Relief Church. In 1797 he proposed to hold a second Communion service—in winter—but exception was taken by the magistrates of the burgh, on the ground that Fast Day observances interfered with business. He conducted a controversial correspondence between the Presb. and Robert Owen, managing director of the New Lanark Cotton Mills, whose socialistic and anti-Christian views were condemned by the Presb. He opened the first Sunday-school in Lanark, and was a warm advocate of Foreign Missions. [From 1655 to 1657 the parish of Lanark had a Second Charge. A congregation of the Original Secession Church (Burgher) was formed in Lanark in 1799, and a church was built in 1829. In 1839 this congregation joined the Church of Scotland, but supply of ordinances ceased soon after the vacancy of 1840. The building was purchased by the Free Church in 1845.]

On 23rd Feb. 1657 the Town Council agreed to settle a stipend upon him. He was called to Mertoun 5th Feb. 1657. The Presb. was unwilling to acquiesce, but K. declared that he "could not subsist under the burden of the ministrie of Lanark, quilk already had broken his heart and

His appearance perhaps suggested to Sir Walter Scott some of the features in his character of "Dominie Sampson." "He was very tall; his person was coarse, his limbs large, and his manners awkward. His soul was pure and untainted, the seat of many manly and amiable virtues."—[Irving's

LESMAHAGOW, FIRST CHARGE.

[The church of Lesmahagow was dedicated to St Machuit, whose mission was seated here. Out of that mission grew the early Celtic Abbey of Lesmahagow, whose buildings stood on the Abbey Green. To the later Tyronensian Priory of Lesmahagow the parish church belonged. This monastery, a cell of Kelso Abbey, was founded by David I. in 1144. It was dedicated to St Machuit, and in it the saint's relics were shown to pilgrims. King David granted the priory a right of sanctuary; and four crosses were erected marking the limits of protection thus given. In 1335 the monastery was burned by an English army led by John of Eltham, a son of Edward II. Over this exploit, in 1336, John and his brother King Edward III. quarrelled at Perth, when John was slain by a thrust of the king's dagger. There were chapels in the parish at Chapelhill, Greenrig, and Blackwood. A fair was held at Lesmahagow on St Machuit's Day, the 15th of November. The parish church was rebuilt in 1804.]

LUSS.

[The church of Luss was dedicated to St Kessog. It was a prebend of Glasgow. The island of Innistavannach in Loch Lomond, within this parish, was the dwelling-place of St Kessog. In later times there was a chapel there, which gave the place its name of Innis tigh a' Mhanaich—"the Monk's house isle." A lingering memory of the worship there long ago clings to the highest point of the island called Tom a' Chluaisg—"the Bell Mount." In another part of the parish, at Bandry, is Carn Mo Cheasoig—"St Kessog's Cairn," marking the place where this early missionary was murdered by robbers. The date of this tragedy is given as 10th March 520. The actual cairn set up in memory of the saint was almost all taken down near the middle of the eighteenth century, to make a road; but a fragment of it was left standing till 1796, or later. St Kessog's bell was treasured in the neighbourhood till the end of the seventeenth century. Besides St Kessog's Chapel at Innistavannach, there were two others in the parish—St Mary's at Rossdhu, where St Kessog was buried, and St Michael's in Glen Luss. The priest of St Michael's lived near it at Edintagart (Aodann an t-sagairt—"the hillside of the priest"). There was also within the bounds a Well of St Bride. In 1315 Robert I. granted to St Kessog's Church of Luss a right of sanctuary extending three miles every way, by land and water, around the church. Of this sanctuary the king appointed Malcolm, fifth Earl of Lennox, and his heirs to be wardens.]

STRATHFILLAN (Q.S.).

[The parish of Strathfillan was disjoined from Killin 27th Feb. 1882. Its name is taken from St Fillan of Glen Dochart, who dwelt here. On the site of his ancient church, King Robert I. founded, in 1314, the Augustinian Priory of Strathfillan, a cell of the Abbey of Inchaffray. Some ruins of this monastery still stand. Many pilgrims came to it to visit the relics of St Fillan, of whose miraculous powers the fame was great even to quite late times. Among other relics shown were the saint's enshrined arm and hand, his bacul, or pastoral staff (now in the National Museum of Antiquities, Edinburgh), his bell, the holy pool where he was wont to bathe, and the place of his burial. In this parish are mission chapels at Crianlarich and Bridge of Orchy. The parish was transferred from the Presbytery of Weem in 1900.]

"A learned man, and of very good account, there was," says Calderwood, "none so frank in the cause (against Episcopacy) as he. He moderated the reasoning, gathered up the conclusions, and put all in writ and order, to be reported to the Assembly. But such was the sagacity of Mr Andrew Melvill, that he deemed neither he nor Mr Patrick Adamson would prove

JOHN LAW, M.A.; ord. by the Pro-1656 testors in 1656; deprived by Act of Parliament 11th June, and Decreet of Privy Council 1st Oct. 1662.

ARCHIBALD DENNISTOUN, M.A., 1682 above mentioned.

JOHN LAW, already noticed; granted 1678 indulgence by Privy Council at Irvine in 1672, but declined, and as he did not appear before the Council when called, 12th March 1673, they ordered his apprehension, 4th June 1674. Accused at the Diocesan Synod, 22nd Oct., of holding conventicles at Kippen, he was imprisoned at Edinburgh. A meeting-house built for him in the parish in 1678 was demolished by order of the Council, and he was sent prisoner to the Bass in 1679, but was released after three months on finding caution to appear when called. He was deprived in 1681, probably on account of the Test; was restored by Act of Parliament 25th April 1690, but having been called to the High Kirk, Edinburgh, accepted that charge.

GEORGE MILNE, educated at Mari-1681 schal College, Aberdeen; was on trials before Presb. of Ellon, with a view to the church of Ellon, Aug. 1676; adm. to Coylton Aug. 1680; inst. here 24th June 1681; deprived by Act of Parliament, 25th April 1690, restoring Presbyterian mins. He was harshly treated by a section of the parishioners, who broke his furniture and threatened his person. He carried off the parochial records.—[The Parish of Campsie, 229.]

1688 Muckhart; educated at Univ. of Glasgow; M.A. (27th July 1676); became assistant in the Grammar School of the Canongate, Edinburgh. While visiting his brother-in-law, Thomas Forrester (afterwards Principal of the New College, St Andrews), he was seized and imprisoned for two years in Stirling, thence removed to the Canongate, but was shortly afterwards liberated. He was licen. by the Presb. of Glasgow 20th June, and ord. 5th Dec. 1688; died 17th Sept. 1729, aged 70. Having studied medicine, he prescribed for illness, taking no fees. He lived a retired monkish life, was highly useful, and though an excellent preacher, and possessed of some learning and knowledge, yet "lived narrowly, and except at the sacrament, flesh was not in his house throughout the year; no wonder," says Wodrow, "he left £6000."—[Wodrow's Hist., ii., 482, and Anal., iv., 77; Cameron's Campsie, 227.]

In 1793 he exerted himself to procure the conviction of Thomas Muir of Huntershill, advocate, the radical, and was a keen supporter of the government, on account of which his manse offices were maliciously set on fire during his absence, 22nd Aug. 1797. He died suddenly in the Star Inn, Glasgow, when on his way to attend a meeting of Presb., 11th Nov. 1824. Possessing great muscular strength, he feared no man, and was popular as a preacher. Tall in stature, with a face full of fire and a bush of hoary locks, he spoke in the Assembly with an ardour and enthusiasm which commanded attention. In 1793 he had a royal pension.  his old parishioners, for which in 1664 he was denounced on the information of his successor. He removed to Kirkland, he exercised his office and celebrated the Communion in the fields. On 8th March

[The General Assembly granted deeds

JOHN DUNCAN, born Gilcomston, 1836 Aberdeen, 1796, son of John D., station at Persie, Perthshire. In 1831 he to this charge, which he dem. 7th Oct.

1840; LL.D. (Aberdeen 28th Nov. 1840).
On 16th May 1841 he was set apart at the instance of the General Assembly's Committee, as missionary to the Continental Jews, chiefly at Buda-Pesth, where Adolph Saphir and Alfred Edersheim, both afterwards well-known clergymen in England, were among his converts. Joined the Free Church in 1843, and was immediately elected Professor of Hebrew in New College, Edinburgh; died 26th Feb. 1870. From his appearance and mannerisms he was familiarily known as "Rabbi Duncan"; he was less successful as a Professor than as a missionary, and would have been more serviceable to his Church and the cause of Christianity had he been allowed to remain in Hungary. His originality, his inexhaustible wealth of thought, his marvellous conversation, combined with a child-like simplicity, and an often ludicrous absent-mindedness, made him one of the most respected and lovable figures in the ecclesiastical life of his time. Dr Taylor Innes described him as in appearance,
"half-ancient mariner and half-wandering Jew, and wholly a being of another sphere, with his long beard and flowing skirts, his lifted finger and glittering eye, his archaic language, and supra-mundane thinking." He marr. ST ENOCH'S.

[St Thenew, the mother of St Mungo, died at Glasgow. Her place of burial was not by the Molendinar Burn, where the cathedral came to be built, but in what is now St Enoch Square. In later times a chapel of St Thenew covered her grave, and around it there was a little burial-ground. Hard by were St Thenew's Well and St Thenew's Croft. The way to the chapel was by St Thenew's Gate, now called the Trongate. The saint's name appears on record in various forms. She is sometimes called St Theneuch and St Eneuch or St Enoch. In 1780, when an additional parish was to be marked out for the growing city of Glasgow, the place chosen for its church was near where St Thenew's Chapel had stood of old. So the new church was built there, and called by the saint's name in the altered form then commonly used. St Enoch's Church was rebuilt in 1827.]

ST GEORGE'S,

FORMERLY WYND OR WEST.

[In 1761 it was found necessary to form a parish for what was then the western part of Glasgow. The Wynd Church was then standing vacant, being no longer needed for St Andrew's Parish. Accordingly that church was restored, and became the West Parish Church. In 1807 a new church was built instead of it, on a different site. This was called St George's, and the same name was then given to the West Parish. There is within the bounds a mission chapel called St Michael's.]

ST MUNGO'S OR HIGH CHURCH

[Until 1595 St Mungo was the only parish of Glasgow, including the city and the Archbishop's adjoining lands, which became the Barony of Glasgow. There were, however, two charges—the Rectory, which was a prebend of the Cathedral, and the Vicarage of Glasgow. Of several chapels in the parish, probably the most notable was that dedicated to the patron saint of the city. It stood on the Dow Hill, very near the Molendinar Burn, and was commonly called Little St Mungo. Beside it was St Mungo's Well. There is, of course, another more famous well of St Mungo still to be seen in the crypt of the Cathedral. Other chapels in the parish were St Thenew's; St John the Baptist's, in the Drygate; St Roque's on the north side of the cathedral, near what is now the end of Castle Street, with St Roque's Loch hard by; St Thomas the Martyr's; St Mary's in the Trongate, and the chapel of Conclud at Bridgeton. Within the Cathedral were the burial shrines of St Mungo and St Fergus of Carnock. It had also chapels of St Andrew, St James, St John the Evangelist, St Peter, and St Paul. Besides the high altar, there was in the nave of the great church a second altar of St Mungo. Other altars were dedicated to St Mary, St Machan, St Bride, St Blaise, St John the Baptist, St Nicholas, St Christopher, St Ninian, St Luag, St Laurence, St Katherine, St Stephen, St Serf, St Thomas the Martyr, St Cuthbert, St Michael, the Holy Blood, Corpus Christi, the Holy Rood, and All Saints. After the Reformation the Cathedral remained the parish church, and such it has never ceased to be. It is also the High Kirk of Glasgow, and is sometimes so called. But St Mungo's has always been the distinctive name of the parish.

As early as 1322 there were Grey Friars settled in Glasgow. The Grey Friars' Wynd marks the site of a convent of theirs, founded in 1476. On the east side of the High Street, half-way between the Cathedral and the Market Cross, was the house of the Black Friars, dedicated to Our Lady and St John the Evangelist. Not far off was Our Lady's Well. St Peter's Fair in summer is still one of the events of the year in Glasgow.]

DAVID WEMYSS, adm. to Ratho in 1565 1562; trans. and adm. about 25th June 1565. It is stated, 23rd Jan. 1571, "he hes seruit in the ministerie of the said citie the space of ten zeris bipast in sum troubill, and without certantie of his stipend." His residence was in the Rottenrow, and in the lodging formerly occupied by the Prebendary of Carstairs. He was a member of the Commission of Assembly 7th July 1569, and was appointed to present to the regent and the nobility certain resolutions regarding the support of the ministry, and the government and jurisdiction of the Church. He was also a member of the Convention at Leith in 1571, and of Assembly Aug. 1571, March 1573, April and Oct. 1581, May 1586, Aug. 1590. He held the office of Vicar-pensioner of Glasgow, which he resigned prior to 2nd Sept. 1571, and is styled parson of G. in April 1582. In the beginning of July 1584 the Provost (John, Earl of Montrose), the Bailies, and Council took him out of the pulpit, and by the command of the King placed there the excommunicated Bishop (Montgomery). He was assaulted, 28th Aug. 1587, by William Cunningham and his son, who attacked him "with a quhingear and pistolet, when coming from the kirk, called him a liar, and struck him on the neck and breast." In fear of his life, W. "cast his gown over his arm, and drew his quhingear in defence," and more serious movements might have taken place but for the timely aid of Andrew Hay, parson of Renfrew, who, with "an quhittel in his hand," prevented greater breach of the peace. The assailants were tried, and ordered "to ask pardon of God, of the Kirk, of the Magistrates, and of Mr Wemis, first at the Wyndhead (where the scene took place), and then in the congregation of the High Kirk, and last of all to take Mr Wemis by the hand, and ask his friendship." He was elected rector of the Univ. of Glasgow, 1593, 1595-8, and again in 1602. He was found, 5th Aug. 1600, "to be declynand in doctrine, negligent in preparation, and oftentimes overtaken with drink," but was pres. to the parsonage and vicarage by James VI. 1st, and adm. 11th Dec. 1601. At his last appearance in the kirk, he is mentioned as "now aged." He died FATHER OF THE CHURCH 10th Sept. 1615. He marr. Christian Jameson, niece of Robert J., burgess of Cupar, and had issue—William; Helen (marr. (1) cont. 10th Feb. 1604, Peter Low, surgeon, Glasgow, medical author and physician to Prince Henry, eldest son of James VI. : (2) Walter Stirling, merchant-burgess, Glasgow); Giles; Christian (marr. James Bell, merchant-burgess, Glasgow).—[Acts and Dec., li., 96; G. R. Inhib., 14th Oct. 1623; Wodrow Biog., ii.; Reg. Min.; *Glasg. ARCHIBALD DOUGLAS, M.A., a 1571 younger son of Richard D., son of James, second Earl of Morton; was parson of Douglas about 1560, nominated an extraordinary 13th Nov. 1565, and 2nd June 1568, an ordinary Lord of Session. Suspected of being cognisant of the murder of both Rizzio and Darnley he retired to France for nearly three years and a half, till he was permitted to return. While holding his judicial appointment, he was presented to the parsonage of G., by the regent, James, Earl of Moray. The Commissioner (Andrew Hay) refused to give him letters-testimonial, and the question came before the General Assembly in March 1570, who confirmed the decision of the Commissioner. D. appealed to the King and Council, to Parliament, to the Lords of Session, or any of them that should be found Judge-competent. The presentation was recorded 20th Aug. 1571. The Commissioners of the Kirk, 23rd Jan. following, allowed him possession, while they decreed he should pay half yearly £100 of stipend to David Wemyss from Whitsunday 1572. A graphic account of his examination for the benefice is given in Bannatyne's Journal. He was found to have assisted the Queen's faction in April same year, and was sent prisoner to Stirling, yet restored to the bench 11th Nov. 1578. He was accused of being accessory to the death of Henry, Lord Darnley, before His Majesty and Council 31st Dec. 1580, but receiving immediate information at his residence of Morham Castle, he made his escape to England early the following morning. He was superseded in his office as a judge, and forfeited in Parliament, with others, 28th Nov. 1581 for treason. He was enabled to return in 1586, by the influence of Patrick, Master of Gray, and Randolph, the English ambassador; had letters of rehabilitation 21st, and was tried for the treasonable conspiracy and murder of Darnley, but acquitted 26th May that year, though a feeling of his guilt was generally prevalent. After this he was sent as ambassador to England, and is understood to have contributed greatly to the condemnation of the unfortunate Queen Mary. From this position also he was dismissed, by Sir Robert Melvill, in 1587. He was, for non-residence and neglect of duty, deposed from the parsonage 13th March 1593, which he demitted 4th July 1597. He marr. 1577, Lady Jane Hepburne, widow of John, Master of Caithness. —[Brunton and Haig's Senators; Booke of the Kirk; Lindsay's Lives, ii.; Scots Peerage, ii., 161; Acts of Parl., iii.; Bannatyne's Journ.; Pitcairn's *Crim. JAMES DURHAM, born 1622, eldest son of John D. of Easter Powrie 1651 (now Wedderburn); educated at Univ. of St Andrews, and betook himself to the life of a country gentleman. While visiting his mother-in-law in the parish of Abercorn, he came under profound religious impressions in consequence of a sermon by Melvill, min. of Queensferry. Joining in the Civil War, he was promoted captain, and seriously exhorted and led the devotions of his company; this being noticed by Professor Dickson, he was induced to prepare himself for the ministry, a resolution which was hastened by two narrow escapes on the battlefield. He graduated M.A. (Glasgow, 1st May 1647); was licen. by Presb. of Irvine 18th May 1647; adm. to Blackfriars 2nd Dec. 1647; app. chaplain to the King July 1650; called 4th Sept. 1651, with charge of West Quarter of the city. He endeavoured, without success, to effect a union between the two contending parties in the Church in 1652. He died of consumption, 25th June 1658. He marr. Proposals were made about this time for a union of the Resolutioners and Protesters, and at a meeting of the latter, when some were expressing themselves ready to agree, provided their opponents would make a confession of fault, he declared, "Let us agree with our brethren though they should never confess a fault." He had the West Quarter for his charge in 1659, and the East, 1660-2. He was deprived and imprisoned by the Privy Council, 28th May 1662, for not taking the Oath of Allegiance, and was again required to appear before the Council 9th Dec. that year on a charge of sedition. For having witnessed the signature of Wood, his brother-in-law, to a declaration contradicting the archbishop's story of his recantation, the primate ever after bore him a grudge. He was summoned before the Court of High Commission 29th April 1664, when he concealed himself, stating in a letter to the Chancellor, William, Earl of Glencairn, that so far from "keeping conventicles or disturbing the public peace, I have been sometimes three, sometimes six weeks, sometimes two full months, that I have never gone out of doors; neither did my not compearing proceed from contempt of his Majesty's authority, but for other reasons." Sometime after he sailed to Ireland, and arrived 2nd May. Here he remained about eight weeks and then returned, landing in Kintyre. With reluctance, he joined in the rising of 1666, for which he was indicted with others 14th Aug., and included in the indemnity of 1st Oct. 1667. He retired to Holland, where he was earnestly entreated to become one of the ministers of the Scots Church, Rotterdam, in 1677, but refused to accept. He was present in July that year at a meeting of ministers in the West, who sought redress of their grievances through the influence of John, Duke of Lauderdale. After this he resided quietly in Edinburgh, suffering much from ill-health. He attended Lord Chancellor Rothes on his deathbed, and was with the Earl of Argyll the Sunday before his execution. After much suffering, borne with magnanimity and cheerfulness, he was attacked by gout in the heart, and died 5th Feb. 1686. He had a great gift of oratory, and it is said that at one Communion service he not only preached the "action" sermon, but also exhorted no less than fourteen or sixteen tables. He marr. 1647, Janet (died 15th June 1685), third daugh. of William Mure of Glanderston (she was imprisoned 4th May 1679 for attending a conventicle), and had issue—William, D.D., Principal of Edinburgh Univ. the General Assembly 30th July 1650 for protesting against its lawfulness and proceedings. He became one of the leaders of the Protesters, and induced the Presbytery, as well as the Synod of Glasgow, to adhere to them. He was appointed Principal of Glasgow Univ. 14th April 1653, which office he held in conjunction with this charge. He was called to London by Cromwell in April 1654, with two others, for consultation about the affairs of the Church, and preached before the Protector. When preaching in St Giles',

Edinburgh, 14th Oct. 1655, he prayed for the Lord Protector, being the first minister in Scotland who openly did so. His sentence of deposition was annulled by the Synod of Glasgow about this time, but on going to the Synod of Lothian to get this Act acknowledged, he was refused admission. He proceeded to London, with other Protesters, to seek an increase of power, but owing to the opposition of Sharp and the Resolutioners, they were not successful.
He remained in London about a year. In 1661 he was imprisoned in the Castles of Edinburgh and Stirling, and indicted before Parliament 6th March for treason.
He only escaped execution, through the influence of Lord Sinclair, by making a humble submission—the King considering him even guiltier than his associate James Guthrie, who was beheaded. Owing to the Royal disfavour he obtained no further employment in the ministry, and died at Leith in Feb. 1675, unmarried, his death being hastened by depression of spirits, perhaps aggravated by intemperance.
“His superior abilities, fluent delivery, and popular manners made him at one time a man of great personal influence. He was, however, ambitious, domineering, and extravagant, so that no bishop in Scotland had ever lived at so high a rate.” He was a benefactor to the Univ. of Glasgow, renewed and enlarged its buildings, and added to its endowment. Publications—

THE TRON, FORMERLY THE LAIGH KIRK.

[In St Thenew's Gate, now the Trongate, James Houstoun, Subdean and Rector of Glasgow, founded in 1528 the Collegiate Church of Our Lady and St Anne. It soon came to be known as the Laigh Kirk, in contrast to the High or Cathedral Kirk.
 Besides its high altar, there were in it altars of St Mary, St Michael, St Mungo, and several other saints. Standing in the Trongate, and having the Tron, or Public Weigh House, close by, this church came to be called the Tron Kirk. In 1592 the Laigh Kirk was put in order for the use of a new division of the city, which soon became the Tron Parish. In 1628 the fine tower, which still stands, was added to the church. For convenience, the Tron weights were for a long time kept in the base of the tower. On 8th Feb. 1793, the
